Health Minister Ralph Loffmark becomes the fourth Soerod minister appointed a QC. Former Attorney-General Robert Bonner, who resigned from the Legislature last spring to devote full-time to business, was the first. Workmen's Compensation Board chairman Cyril White of Vancouver and Victoria city solicitor Terrence Pitt O'Grady, Arthur William Hobbs, general solicitor for the attorney-general's department, and Kenneth Cameron Murphy, all of Victoria, were also on the list.

Other new QCs are Donald Moore Cunliffe, Nanaimo; David Ricardo Williams, Duncan and 10 from Vancouver, Richard Philip Anderson, Frank Holton Britton, George Stewart Cumming, Robert Theodore DuMoulin, Arthur Boyd Ferris, David Arthur Freeman, Arthur Joseph Fyney Johnson, Charles George Robson, Mary Frances Southin, Evans Ernest Wasson.

B.C. Order:

Arbitration For Police

By DON COLLINS

Saanich and Oak Bay police lost the right Monday to call a strike in their present wage dispute.

They will be forced, as had been expected, to abide by a binding decision of the B.C. Mediation Commission. (See also Page 17.)

For the first time since it began official operation last December, the commission will exercise its controversial power of compulsory arbitration.

CABINET MEETING

The decision to hand the case to the commission on this basis was made at a cabinet meeting on the advice of Labor Minister Leslie Peterson, after he had met in his office for an hour and 45 minutes with representatives of the two police bodies.

Had this move not been made, the police had planned to serve 72-hour strike notice on both municipalities at 9 a.m. today.

The mediation commission has heard other cases, but only when the parties voluntarily requested it.

FORCED HAND

This time, the police forced the government's hand by voting last Friday in favor of a strike, and setting a deadline.

Mr. Peterson, who is also attorney-general, had indicated earlier the police constituted an essential service that could not be allowed to break down.

Police had forecast Monday's outcome well in advance and had described it as the only avenue open to them. When they held their strike vote Friday, they agreed not to serve notice until they conferred Monday with Mr. Peterson.

SECTION 18

The power the commission will use in dealing with the case comes through invoking Section 18 of the Mediation Act, better known as Bill 33.

After meeting police representatives, Mr. Peterson said he felt he had no alternative but to recommend use of compulsory arbitration by the commission. He said police had brought up the question of establishing a police act, but that this had not been discussed in depth.

'MINISTER RELUCTANT'

Teamster west coast leader Ed Lawson, representing the police, said Mr. Peterson did not seem to favor the idea of a police act. "The minister was reluctant to take the policemen under the sphere of the mediation commission."

He said Bill 33 gave police the right to call a strike, "without the right to exercise it."

Police in Victoria, Oak Bay and Saanich had sought through their various police commissions to win wage parity with police in six communities on the Lower Mainland.

SALARY DIFFERENCE

Until a recent 17.5 per cent increase, a first-class constable on the mainland had been earning $644 a month, compared to $620 for his counterpart in Greater Victoria.

Police here say it would take a 21.5 per cent hike to bring about parity. Victoria police went before the mediation commission on a voluntary basis and were awarded a 14.56 per cent increase, dubbed "punitive and unfair" by Mr. Lawson, who had represented them.

OFFER REDUCED

Oak Bay police were offered 17 per cent by their police commission, but the offer was reduced to match the Victoria award. Saanich police say their offer fell short of the 14.56 per cent set for Victoria.

Mr. Lawson said Mr. Peterson was told Monday an application would be made to have the mediation commission reconsider the Victoria police award. He said Mr. Peterson appeared willing to hear such an application.

Anti-Gambling Crusader Bets Wrong Longshot

RENTON, Wash. (UPI) — Crusading attorney Alva Long went to Longacres racetrack Sunday bent on losing $300 and suing the state for running an illegal gambling establishment. Instead his longshot came home in front and Long won $1,845.

The attorney from Auburn, Wash., was going to lose $300 in crisp $100 bills, then sue the state under an 1881 statute. The $300 sum was stipulated in the old law as a requirement to bring the matter to the state supreme court.

In the first race, Long plunked down his money for three $100 tickets to win on Sun O'Morn, who had managed to lose all three of his starts, including a 16-length whipping in his last race. But the horse, fourth choice of the bettors, grabbed the lead in the stretch and came home a winner, paying $12.30 for every $2.

The law, passed by a territorial legislature before Washington became a state, permits anyone who loses money gambling to sue the person he lost money to for the amount lost.

Long said he will try again, and emphasized he does not want to end all gambling in the state. Instead, he hopes to do away with double standards that ban gambling on pinball machines or in cardrooms while allowing parimutuel gambling at the track.

Specific Figures Today

Major U.S. Withdrawals Predicted from Vietnam

SAIGON (AP) — Another 40,500 United States troops will be withdrawn from South Vietnam by the end of November and from 150,000 to 200,000 will be out of the country by the end of 1970, Vice-President Nguyen Cao Ky said Monday night.

The Viet Cong radio promptly repeated demands that all U.S. troops get out of the country. It declared complete withdrawal "is the only way to restore the honor of the United States and to avoid the meaningless death of tens of thousands of young Americans."

SPECIFIC FIGURES

Ky made his statement while visiting a Saigon art exhibit after an emergency meeting of the South Vietnamese National Security Council.

In Washington, White House press secretary Ronald Ziegler told reporters President Nixon has decided definitely on another withdrawal of U.S. troops from Vietnam. He said the White House would announce specific figures this morning.

"Nixon's withdrawing more troops... pass it on!"

Shortly before Ky issued his statement, he met with President Nguyen Van Thieu and other top Vietnamese officials to discuss a second U.S. troop withdrawal. The meeting followed the return to Saigon of Gen. Creighton Abrams, U.S. commander in Vietnam, from a Washington conference with Nixon.

Ky's statement came at a time when the Nixon administration was being pressed to take new peace initiatives following the death of North Vietnamese President Ho Chi Minh.

REGULAR UNIT

The U.S. command reported Monday that for the first time in the war a regular North Vietnamese army unit—the 18th Regiment—had attacked in the Mekong Delta, south of Saigon.

The regiment, numbering up to 2,000 men, was reported to have moved into the delta last month after the withdrawal of two brigades of the 9th Division to the U.S.

Seven hours of fighting left 83 Communist troops dead. Four government trainees were killed and 19 wounded.

There were no reports of major action elsewhere.

Men on Mars in 1980s Part of Unhurried Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon set his sights Monday on a United States landing on Mars in the 1980s.

Nixon accepted a report from a special task force on space calling for a landing on Mars but rejecting any crash program to do so that would ignore budgetary considerations.

The report also rejected any phasing out of manned space flights.

The report was submitted by Vice-President Spiro Agnew and other members of the task force. Nixon had assigned the group the task of making proposals for the administration's space program.

White House press secretary Ronald Ziegler said its recommendations on it call for "a balanced program of both manned and unmanned activity with a man landing on Mars as an integral part."

New Cosmos Launch In Space Bomb Path

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union Monday launched an unmanned satellite into a path used for testing its unique "space bomb."

Tass said Cosmos 298 was sent up on an orbit with a high point of 121 miles and a low point of 87 miles at an angle to the equator of 50 degrees. Western military space experts said this is the path used for testing the Soviet fractional orbital bombardment system in 1967 and 1968.

Standard Cosmos space research vehicles follow one of several well-known orbits and prototype manned space craft are tested in other flight paths. The orbit of Cosmos 298 has been used only for testing the "space bomb."

The "fractional orbit" means the weapon is designed to complete less than a full orbit around earth. It is then skewed by retro-rockets and drops its warhead or warheads on a target.

Russia Breaks Wheat Pact

Canada May Lose Millions

Collected Los Angeles Times Service

MOSCOW — The Soviet Union has defaulted on a major three-year wheat agreement with Canada resulting in possible Canadian losses of several hundred million dollars.

It is understood on the best authority that the Soviet failure to fulfill contractual obligations could cost Canada as much as $200,000,000 to $300,000,000 in wheat sales.

These loss estimates represent only a partialing Soviet pledges to purchase Canadian wheat under an agreement signed in June, 1966.

Under that accord the Russians agreed to buy 9,000,000 metric tons during a three-year period. The total estimated cost to the Soviet Union was between $500,000,000 and $700,000,000.

The contract's termination date fell July 31, 1969.

Canada has sold and delivered only about 5,200,000 tons thus far. The unsettled Soviet deficit remains at approximately 3,800,000 tons, or 42 per cent of what the Russians originally promised to buy.

Moreover, Canadian hopes of rectifying what is a clear Soviet default are anything but encouraging.

In spite of the joint agreement, Canadian wheat sales to the Soviet Union have tapered off dramatically since 1967.

The Russians bought 57-200,000 bushels of wheat that year. In 1968 the figure dropped to 40,000 bushels. During December of last year Canada was able to conclude only a couple of small future sales covering limited wheat shipments to Cuba.

It was in that month that Canadian and Soviet officials held their last direct meeting. A long-distance but inconclusive exchange took place early this summer.

As the question now stands, the two sides have agreed only to meet later in the year.

The best Eastern judgment here is that at that time the Soviet Union may consent to nothing more than nominal wheat purchases and a provision to continue periodic talks.

For the public record neither nation is conceding default, a potential source of serious controversy between Moscow and Ottawa. Instead, the troubles are couched in a fancy diplomatic language about continuing talks and the recognition by both sides of existing financial obligations.

The point about the initial contract, however, is that it does not contain a stretch-out clause.

Informed sources offered the following two-fold explanation of the Soviet failure to live up to the agreement, a

U.S. Air Controllers Fuming

Frank Radar Critic Punished?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. government was accused Monday of punishing an air traffic controller who warned radar coverage was weak in an area where a jetliner collided with a small plane last week, killing 83 persons.

The National Association of Government Employees, which claims to represent about 8,500 of the 14,000 U.S. controllers, said the Federal Aviation Administration relieved James Knecht of his duties controlling traffic at Weir-Cook Municipal Airport in Indianapolis.

The association also said Knecht was held "incommunicado" over the weekend by FAA officials. It said he was subjected to "intense grilling" while being denied the right to counsel.

Kenneth Lyons, association president, said, "There is no question but that the FAA is punishing this man for squealing on the system."

An FAA spokesman confirmed Knecht was relieved of his duties and assigned to a new job where radar is not involved. He said the FAA Supervisor at Indianapolis felt that, if Knecht did not have "confidence" in the radar, he should not be assigned to use it.

Knecht has said he warned the FAA July 28 small planes do not appear in the area of radar coverage where an Allegheny Airlines jetliner collided with a private plane Sept. 9.

Lyons said Knecht "has been warning the agency for more than two years that radar coverage at Weir-Cook was inadequate. Now that his and the other controllers' worse fears have been realized, the FAA bureaucracy is doing its damndest to squelch any revelation of its negligence."

He said the association had sent a telegram to FAA administrator John Shaffer demanding Knecht be fully restored to his old job within 48 hours or he would seek court action and a Congressional investigation.

The four wives from Dallas, Tex., appealed to the North Vietnamese delegation to the North Vietnamese knew the wife of Capt. Robert Jeffrey, Mrs. Sandy McElhanon, wife of Major Michael McElhanon, and Mrs. Paula Hartness, wife of Capt. Gregg Hartness.

The women arrived in Paris late Sunday. Their husbands are all air force men listed as missing on air missions over North Vietnam.

FIGHTING MEN

The fate of about 1,200 U.S. fighting men listed as missing in action is unknown because the North Vietnamese have refused to furnish information about the number or identity of prisoners they hold.

A day before the wives arrived, North Vietnam again said captured U.S. airmen were "war criminals" not deserving treatment as prisoners of war. Chief Hanoi negotiator Col. Ha Van Lau rebuffed American delegation chief Henry Cabot Lodge's request for inspection.

Belfast Crisis Looms

BELFAST (AP) — Britain's eminent the timing and manner army commander in Northern of barrier removal, Callaghan Ireland made a surprise flight to London Monday for talks with Prime Minister Wilson amid a deepening crisis over the Belfast barricades.

Lt. Gen. Sir Ian Freeland, commander of the 7,500 British troops deployed here since last month's Protestant-Roman Catholic rioting, was accompanied by Oliver Wright, British trouble-shooter attached to Northern Ireland's government.

TOP BRASS

They met at 10 Downing Street with Wilson, Defence Secretary Denis Healey and Home Secretary James Callaghan, principal author of the reform package intended to meet Catholic charges of discrimination and get the barricades down.

Officially, they met to review developments since the army took control of Northern Ireland's security in mid-August.

But it was clear that the continued existence of barricades in Catholic areas of Belfast and Londonderry was high on the agenda. Despite appeals from the two governments and the Roman Catholic hierarchy, Catholic defence groups have refused to remove barricades erected during the riots.

No Justification for Brutality

THERE IS NO REASON to disbelieve the story of torture and humiliation suffered at the hands of his North Vietnamese captors as related by Lieut. Robert Frishman. He was one of three Americans released Aug. 5, and spokesman for them when they were interviewed.

Subsequent statements from North Vietnamese sources tend, in fact, to confirm his charges of torment, neglect of wounded and starvation diet experienced particularly by captured airmen.

When, on the basis of evidence from Lieut. Frishman and his two companions, the United States delegation to the Paris conversations appealed for better treatment for prisoners of war in North Vietnam, Ha Van Lau, Hanoi's deputy chief there, argued that men who had committed "grave crimes against humanity . . . are not entitled to benefit from the provisions of this (Geneva) Convention."

In Hanoi the North Vietnam Red Cross confirmed that American pilots taken prisoner "will not enjoy" the protection of the Convention. It is, of course, quite fruitless to argue the issue. As the Hanoi spokesman says, American and other prisoners of war "lie within the competence of the laws now in force in the Democratic Republic of Vietnam, an independent and sovereign country".

It is the judgment of that country that Americans are "war criminals." As such, they are subject to whatever punishment their captors condemn them.

But whatever the North Vietnamese call them, there is no justification for brutality where prisoners are concerned. And it is an extraordinary thing that any supposedly civilized government would condone it.

Such behavior, even if it does not alienate those who sympathize with the Communists and who condemn the Americans and the South Vietnamese for daring to defend the southern state against the forces of "liberation," will certainly have hot reaction in the United States.

There will be no suggestion of reprisals. That is unthinkable. But there will undoubtedly be a hardening of the spirit of resistance, a determination to check any further advance of communism against which Saigon remains a bastion and a general stiffening of attitude due to anger which pointsless cruelty arouses.

Far from frightening or discouraging their enemies, the mistreatment of prisoners of war by the North Vietnamese will have exactly the opposite effect. At the same time it is to be hoped such a practice will be vehemently condemned by people and governments who still listen to their conscience.

Canada's Arctic Sovereignty

IF HOPE WAS created that Canada might take a strong stand on its northern sovereignty by reports that the external affairs department was giving the subject new priority and by External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp's word that a statement probably would be ready for the resumption of Parliament, it has been considerably diluted.

The reports out of Ottawa said that "sources" expected Canada would claim sovereignty in Arctic waters but guarantee the right of free passage to all nations. Prime Minister Trudeau, however, said that "specific action" would be taken during the coming session but a strong statement now could weaken Canada's position and drag it into international courts.

Mr. Trudeau further remarked that the Canadian claims would have to be established in international law, not through unilateral declaration, and that he thought the international law was evolving in Canada's favor.

It is to be hoped that this does not mean that a new statement when Parliament re-assembles on October 22 will be as wishy-washy on the subject of Canadian rights in Arctic waters as was Mr. Trudeau's previous statement in May.

At that time Mr. Trudeau appeared to abandon the position of previous governments that Canadian sovereignty includes the Arctic waters as well as the islands and continental shelf. Not all countries, he said, would accept that the waters between the islands were Canada's, and "... such differences . . . would have to be settled . . . with due regard for established principles of international law."

The best approach to a settlement, one might think, would be a strong and direct claim by Canada—not an expression of doubt giving other countries points from the start.

Fry-Away Sausages

SAUSAGES THAT FRY away to nearly nothing are probably on the way out in Canada, according to news from Ottawa. The federal food and drug directorate has plans to limit the fat content to not more than 40 per cent.

But we are not entirely assured that even if the directorate has its way and obtains government approval, a great deal more than nearly nothing is going to remain in the pan to eat after the sausages have sizzled brown.

The puzzling thing is that the moisture content already is regulated (the same news item says) at not more than 60 per cent and the cereal content at not more than 4 per cent.

Of course the moisture content and the fat content will overlap, so that even with the cereal there will be room left for the protein that is the directorate's concern. But between the run-off and the steam-off, we certainly can't expect to get sausages guaranteed not to shrink.

Canadian Diplomats Pick Some Pretty Plums While Trudeau Talks of Economic Pruning

IT must be wonderful to work "a few" diplomatic outposts in the department of external affairs.

It's a snug little gentlemen's club in an unreal world of its own where nobody worries about anything . . . not even what the prime minister says about it.

And Prime Minister Trudeau hasn't been particularly flattering in his recent references to the striped-pants-and-cutaway-coat-department.

First he wondered what the diplomats did to justify their existence, and asked what they reported from their listening posts abroad in their despatches to Ottawa that he couldn't get more quickly and in perhaps better detail in the newspapers.

Then he singled them out as the Really Big Spenders in the federal service, remarking that the operating cost of the department had doubled in only eight years, and unless somebody cut them down to size, the diplomatic budget would multiply five times in the next six.

There would have to be some changes made, he warned. Canadian embassies and legations around the world would be scrutinized one by one, staff cut back in "some cases," and even they've sure got to love the look it gets them.

Or so you'd think. But you'd be wrong. It wasn't enough.

There had to be fringe benefits over and above the privileged plums such as tax-free liquor and tax-free cars that come built into the striped pants profession.

They've got some nifties, too. Like government loans of up to $2,500 when assigned overseas.

Plus loans of up to $1,500 for the purchase of that tax-free car.

Plus shipping expenses for the car.

Plus a "dislocation allowance" of up to $200. Plus rent and utilities subsidies when charges exceed Ottawa rates.

Plus a $540 "language allowance."

Plus 12 other such "perks." In contrast to the way the department serves itself — $46,000,000 in headquarters operating costs plus $56,000,000 for its diplomatic establishments abroad — external affairs this year, like last year, is spending precisely $25,000 in "assistance to the distressed Canadians abroad."

Which sort of underlines the well-authenticated fact that the last person any Canadian legation or embassy wants to see, and the most churlishly unwelcome when the poor fellow does show up, is the touring taxpayer from home.

So these are the diplomats the prime minister has warned must rough it abroad on a reduced budget.

Clearly they weren't listening to him, or if they were, they're ignoring him. And you can't blame them. They've heard it all before.

Former prime minister John Diefenbaker, on his first New York appearance before the UN, called a press conference in his Drake Hotel suite to tell the astonished reporters one almost toppled backward in amazement through the window and down onto Fifth Avenue — that he was "wise to those guys" in external affairs, who, he very well knew, "didn't do enough to keep themselves warm."

He swore he was "going to change all that" — but in the years since, external affairs has doubled itself.

Prime ministers may come and go, but the bureaucracy goes on forever.

OUR READERS' VIEWS

Sweden Sets Example

WHEN sewage outfalls are still used in modern day society, the people are well behind the times if you realize that when sewage is released to the open ocean it creates a sludge in the water which can pollute beaches and make the water a "living body" of bacteria.

Take Sweden for instance, which encountered sludge in the water as early as 1850, at which time 60 per cent of Sweden's sewage was not purified. Today, 18 per cent of Sweden's sewage is not purified by any means, but by 1970 all sewage will be treated in one way or another.

When you are talking about purification, you're discussing three types: mechanical, biological and chemical.

The mechanical purification merely grinds the solids in the sewage so that no bulk solids remain. This system is very ineffective and in Sweden they want to get away from it as soon as possible. Bacteria still lives on and more sludge is created.

Biological purification is going into use at a rapid speed in Sweden because it destroys most of the harmful bacteria in the sewage. By adding oxygen to the sewage, the desirable bacteria grow and are stimulated. These bacteria soon eat the "food" on which harmful bacteria thrive. Oxygen also prevents certain harmful bacteria and toxic bacteria from growing and multiplying.

The chemical purification method is used in about 10-15 plants in Sweden and is the most effective because it purifies the sewage completely. The final product is clear water, and doesn't taste bad. By 1975 all sewage is to be purified in this way, at least this is what they are aiming for.

In Victoria we should not oppose mechanical purification but we should be pressing for at least biological purification. The same approach should be taken to dumping sewage overboard on ships. By Swedish law it is prohibited to discharge solid waste matter such as soot, ashes, rubbish, glass and galley refuse. Refuse, galley waste and/or similar impurities must be deposited at special collection points in the harbor area.

Purification is expensive but is compulsory. We may not encounter sludge at present but it does form and will become more evident when the population of Victoria grows and the amount of sewage increases.

We should agree with Health Minister Ralph Lofmark who supports treatment before disposal but what we should ask is, "What type of treatment?"

Ferry Authority Plan Defended

I regret that I must once again take your paper to task for its reporting. The article on the front page of your Tuesday, September 9 issue under the headline "B.C. Ferry Spews Sewage" does a disservice to the endeavors of responsible people to institute measures to control and prevent pollution of our environment.

The simple facts of the case are that when the Queen of Esquimalt was to be enlarged, the Ferry Authority showed a genuine and sincere concern in the matter of how to cope with waste discharge from what was to be the largest ferry in service. Those responsible took upon themselves to discuss the matter in considerable length with myself, then director of pollution control. It was agreed that a holding tank with elaborate piping valves, pumps and controls be provided (at considerable cost) to prevent discharge of sewage from the ferry while approaching and in the berthing area. It was also agreed that the said tank should not be emptied while the ferry was within the Gulf Islands.

Therefore a rigid schedule was set up so that all wastes were to go to the tanks while the ferry was in the vicinity of the terminals, or berthed and that the tank could only be emptied when the ferry was in the open waters of the Straits of Georgia. Upon such an understanding did the director of pollution control issue approval.

Since the sea is a voracious environment capable of assimilating human organic wastes, the rapid dissipation of the wastes from the ferry without nuisance or hazard is assured.

It is indeed unfortunate that the press, in general, does not take a more responsible position in the whole matter of waste disposal and pollution control, by publishing and supporting the responsible efforts being made by those informed of the facts. All too often, it is the pseudo-experts that get the front page. A responsible headline would emphasize the fact that the Queen of Esquimalt had taken measures to control pollution, rather than "Ferry Spews Sewage."

It is such which hunting that is responsible for the unwarranted delay in the current Greater Victoria area sewerage program, which urgently needs implementation to improve the general environmental quality and allow for controlled growth of our fair metropolitan area.

Who Needs a Talking Dog . . . or Chimp, or Porpoise

IT was most encouraging last Saturday to read in The Montreal Star that the experts were having difficulty teaching chimps to speak.

The difficulties have been so unique, in fact, many of these experts are doubting if it will ever be possible for men to communicate with animals, at least to communicate through a common speech.

And this is just jim dandy with me.

For some time now I have been worried, let me tell you, about the possibility that this world of ours might be turned into an even worse ball of babel. I mean, people were mentioning the possibility of us communicating with porpoises and chimps and carrying on as though this would be only the beginning of a glorious inter-mammal talk-fest.

Somehow I failed to share the common enthusiasm for this dream of the ultimate in communications. In fact, the very thought gave me an advanced sense of acute boredom.

It isn't that I am a snob and believe that porpoises and chimps would not be able to reach our intellectual level when it comes to conversation. What terrified me was that porpoises and chimps would reach our intellectual level of conversation—and thereby increase the world's boredom a thousand-fold.

I first got an inkling that these experts who are so starry-eyed about communicating with animals might not be on the right track way back in the early 1940s when a great but short-lived comic strip—Barnaby—was born.

Barnaby featured a kid who had as a fairy godfather a somewhat alcoholic little gent who, when he was supposed to bring about some feat of magic, invariably discovered he had forgotten his wand in MacGillcuddy's Bar and Grill.

The godfather, if you can believe it, resembled nobody so much as a diminutive W. C. Fields—with wings yet.

Anyway, this unlikely two-some had as a sidekick a very smart-alecky dog. One day, when the godfather let his flimsy grip on magic get away out of control, the dog began to talk.

When Barnaby (the kid) asked the dog why he hadn't told anybody before that he could talk, the dog replied:

"I guess nobody ever asked me."

Anyway, here in fantasy form was the great dream come true. The talking dog was with us. Man's best friend not only crouched at your feet. He sat on a chair and demanded his turn at the conversational plate. The result was a semantic series of horrors.

The dog became a crashing bore. He used clichés. He told moth-eaten jokes. And, worse still, as is the way with human bores, he was convinced he was a great conversationalist and refused to let anybody else talk. And this is exactly what I worry about when I think of all those porpoises and all those chimps yak-yak-yakking in a way we can understand.

Stop and think for a moment. How many humans do you know who are interesting conversationalists? How many can tell a good story?

More important, how many will keep quiet so you can tell your stories?

Dang few. I am willing to bet. So why the great rush to teach animals to talk? Have we any guarantee that their quota of interesting conversationalists will be any higher than ours? I mean, after you have heard one porpoise tell you how cold and treacherous it is way down there in the depths of the ocean, how many more do you need to listen to?

Porpoises, I am sure, lead almost as routine and regimented lives as humans. Eat a herring, romance a female, play with the kid—that's life out there in the Atlantic.

It probably would sound like any suburbia.

The same goes for chimps. How many times do you want to hear about how leaves don't make very good roofs, or how one can get tired of bananas and nuts?

Soon it begins to sound like your neighbor complaining about how she is suffering on her latest diet. So I say it is a good thing we are having difficulty teaching animals how to communicate with us. Perhaps we should be spending all this time and effort and money teaching humans how to communicate with each other.

Middle East: Solution Soon—or Else

Mounting incidents and tensions in the Middle East, coinciding with the opening this week of the United Nations General Assembly, arouse again the sense of urgency that some solution be found soon—or else.

Indeed the air, land and sea activities around the Suez canal and other trouble areas, in recent weeks have left the clear indication that at certain levels, the so-called "six-day war" of 1967 is still being fought.

U.S. state department declarations that "we deplore and regret all ceasefire violations" have been about as influential in finding any substantive solution as similar declarations from other Eastern and Western capitals and the United Nations.

"This is the situation that makes a mockery of the designation 'super-power,'" says Peter Grosse, writing in the New York Times.

By ROD CURRIE from Washington

"The super-powers of the Middle East crisis are Egypt and Israel; the Soviet Union and the United States are nothing more than restive and frustrated satellites."

Now, with the stage set for another round of talks at the UN forum in New York, there is little in past experience to encourage hopes that some new formula can suddenly be uncovered.

At first the Big Four—the U.S., Soviet Union, Britain and France—took a crack at it in springtime talks that finally were suspended July 1 to await the outcome of separate U.S.-Soviet talks.

These two-way talks also were quietly abandoned.

The four-power approach had been advocated mainly by Britain and France but domestic difficulties and in France a new administration, apparently brought reservations in Paris and London.

The U.S. had been opposed—with Israel—to four-power talks from the start, and although there are indications the talks with the Soviet Union brought some limited agreement on arms shipments to the area, they were not broadly productive.

The Arab-Israeli issue is expected to come to the General Assembly floor late this week or early next, and Secretary-General U Thant has already launched a campaign to press or embarrass the Big Four into action.

He has invited their representatives to a "working dinner" next Saturday. And last week he made an opportunity for calling on the Big Four powers to step up efforts to achieve peace in the area.

"It seems to me," Thant said, "that there is need for even more sustained and concentrated effort on the part of the four... in the months ahead if we are to save the situation."

Newsweek, in a report from the area, concludes that both the Israelis and the Arabs still appear convinced that all that is required to teach each other a lesson is a judicious amount of bloodletting. The magazine comments:

"And neither has yet come to terms with the fact that, while an increasing number of lives were being lost in this mutual educational process, no one appeared to be learning any lessons at all."

'I Burned a Book—and Feel Good'

By DENNIS BRAITHWAITE from Toronto

On a recent evening, while reading in my room, I was all of a sudden seized by a strange and inexplicable impulse. In a single movement, I sprang from my chair and cast the book I was reading into the fireplace.

As the flames quickly consumed the slender volume, I stood entranced, reflecting on what I had done.

Well, I had burned a book, that's what I'd done; and you know, I felt good about it. Burn a book some time and see if you don't agree. Book-burning has had a bad name ever since those newsreels of Nazi storm troopers making bonfires of the works of Heine, and Einstein and other Jewish lackeys of the plutocratic democracies. But there are book burnings and book burnings.

The book I tossed into the flames (not to keep you in suspense any longer) was The Story of O, a work of surpassing pornographic degeneracy. Faked up as a serious memoir, it is really a compendium of all the perversions, aberrations and fetishes recorded by Dr.

Freud, with a few he never dreamed existed. It possesses, as they say, not a single element of redeeming literary merit. It is well-written, but that only compounds the offence.

For the publication of such books does constitute an offence. So why shouldn't they be burned?

That book-burning is evil in all circumstances is one of those unexamined propositions that have become part of our current dogma. I can think of many reasons for burning books and many books that should have been burned before they ever got into general circulation.

Main Kampf, for one. Can anyone deny now that Hitler's blueprint, instead of warning the world of what was to come, turned out to be a major influence in the corruption of European society, a society that subsequently collapsed even before his panzers rolled?

How about Das Kapital and the Communist Manifesto? If someone had tossed them into the fire 100 years ago, Russia and China would probably be free today, there would be no war in Vietnam and Stanley Gray would be a nice boy.

The Protocols of the Elders of Zion — think of the suffering that miserable forgery loosed upon millions of innocent Jews. And any day now it can be expected to reappear in Russia and Poland.

Oh, I can think of lots of books that had been better burned than read. In Cold Blood. How many peaceful families have been murdered since it was published? Lolita's another. High-grade degeneracy is the worst kind; Nabokov's literary credentials enabled him to convert a dirty old man into an intellectual hero. Make out your own list, the rule being, does it corrupt, does it do anybody any good, is it art?

I am not against eroticism in literature, it can be beautiful. I just think we are getting too many filthy books.

Patent-Medicine Buff Swears by Old Days

By JOHN KASTNER from Toronto

Near the Kastner summer cottage I ran into a lady reader who suggested that what I needed to improve my disposition was a swig of Dr. Dalton's Sarsaparilla and Nerve Tonic. She showed me what she claims is the only full bottle of it left — in the original box, with directions the size of a tabloid newspaper.

Date of manufacture: 1893. It turned out that the lady is an old patent-medicine buff who is convinced that they're not making the stuff the way they used to.

Dr. Dalton's tonic is typical not only of the remedies sold in the good old days but the advertising as well. Just two tablespoons at every meal could permanently cure your tuberculosis, goitre, cancer, syphilis, taints, liver and kidney ills, loss of memory, St. Vitus Dance, impotence and paralysis.

At 15 cents a bottle, what could you lose? Nothing but your lunch.

The number of patent medicines sold to a sick and gullible world in those days ran into the thousands. Some were merely harmless, but others were deadly. One product, Soothing Syrup for Children, contained so much laudanum that 15,000 babies died before it was removed — reluctantly — from the market.

But, my lady informant insisted that one was merely a fluke.

She pointed out a few bottles in her collection as examples of cures that thousands of healed sufferers swore by: The Great Dr. Kilmer's Swamp Root (for constipation), Dr. Weld's Radiated Fluid for Cancer; Pawnee Indian Blood, Stomach, Liver and Kidney Renovator, and the indispensable Dr. Fox's Clam Tea and Heart Repairer.

Since it's a fact that between 50 and 75 per cent of all human ills cure themselves in time, it's not hard to see how the false nostrums could become famous.

With no bars against false advertising, to say nothing of an absence of any government control, fantastic claims were the order of the day. One product to cure barren women advertised, "A baby in every bottle."

house in America once sold, under its own name a White Star Liquor Cure that had enough morphine to stun a mule. On the next page of their catalogue they featured a White Star Narcotic Cure that was 85 per cent booze. It kept the customers guessing.

When I protested mildly about the lack of controls over medicine in those days, the lady insisted that the situation was not appreciably different today. Just for interest's sake, I thought I'd see if there was anything to her parting mutter that we were being flooded with poison just to enrich the drug companies' coffers.

Some random samples from recent files indicate that some of today's drug companies are not behaving much more scrupulously than yesterdays.

In the long drawn-out trial of the drug companies that produced the baby-crippler thalidomide, for instance, it's now coming out that some rather underhanded methods were used to silence critics of the drug.

Just this month, a long-awaited, controversial report on birth-control pills, linking them with cancer of the cervix, was finally published in the midst of rumors that drug companies had brought pressure on medical journals to prevent the report's publication.

The two doctors who wrote the report, both respected members of their profession, had it turned back several times by the Journal of the American Medical Association for repeated revisions despite the fact that their findings were reported exceedingly cautiously.

And an incredible scandal now brewing in the United States indicates that a disturbing proportion of new drugs — and perhaps as many as half — have received only the most perfunctory and unprofessional testing by one Atlantic doctor who cornered the market on testing, made a mint out of it, and has never been known to write a single critical report on any drug.

A disturbing number of these drugs were finally challenged by federal authorities, but only after they had been in use for several years. You have to figure that Dr. Dalton's Sarsaparilla and Nerve Tonic couldn't have been much worse.

The other Europe

There's a Europe few people know. That everyone goes to see. And few ever find. It ends when summer begins. And begins when summer ends. It's Europe populated by Europeans instead of tourists. Europe gone to sleep or come alive. Depending on you and how you look at it. Where there's time to smile back at the Mona Lisa in Paris. Where fog makes a London pub even warmer in welcome. Where a Swiss fondue in Zurich can introduce you to people who know how to live. Where the mist from the Danube shrouds Vienna in a romantic haze. Where there's time to catch a certain mermaid's eye in Copenhagen.

Use the excuse of a business trip, a family visit, skiing if you have to, but don't wait till next year to see the Other Europe. Because if enough people discover it, it'll never be the same.

Air Canada flies to these and several other uncrowded destinations in Europe — Brussels, Glasgow, Shannon, Frankfurt and Moscow. And everywhere else in Europe is but a short hop away from these gateways. We make it not just easier to go to the Other Europe, but absolutely possible. ## Legal Starting Jan. 1

Canadians Want Lotteries

By PETER DEMPSON from Ottawa

A public opinion poll in May showed that 78 per cent of Canadians favor legalized lotteries and sweepstakes. Starting Jan. 1 they'll be able to buy tickets on their without fear of prosecution.

But purchases will be confined to Canadian lotteries. Tickets on Irish, Mexican and other foreign sweepstakes will still be outlawed, even though they continue to be smuggled in.

Justice Minister John Turner has set Jan. 1 as the date when recently-approved Criminal Code amendments relating to lotteries become effective, enabling provinces and the Federal Government to operate them to produce revenue.

Charitable and religious groups will also be given more leeway in conducting lotteries. So will agricultural fairs and exhibitions. Even the neighborhood bingo is to be given new status.

So far only Quebec, long strapped for finances, has succumbed to this strong new pull. Justice Minister René Paul has announced the province will be the first to set up its own scheme.

But, he added, this won't be done until the Supreme Court of Canada has rendered a judgment on the legality of Montreal's near-lottery — Volintax — which began in May, 1968.

Meanwhile, the city of Sherbrooke, Quebec, plans to establish a voluntary tax as an alternative to increasing taxes. Its first drawing for a total of $60,000 in prizes will take place Oct. 12.

The idea of lotteries puts a gleam in the eye of many people in government in Canada, as well as in the U.S., chiefly because it offers a source of revenue which remains untapped while traditional sources are all but wrung dry.

Still, financial experts who have made a careful study of the advantages and disadvantages of lotteries and sweepstakes agree that, at best, they are shaky ventures easily affected by the whims of an unpredictable public.

Lotteries, they insist, are a strictly a fringe method of raising funds and no substitute for established tax-collecting practices and sound fiscal management.

Montreal's near-lottery, which is geared to its tax bills, has also encountered some problems. But it has still managed to produce more than $10,000,000 in revenue for that hard-pressed city. Tickets sell for $2 and the top monthly prize is $100,000.

The main question to be decided, and which scares off potential ticket purchasers in some provinces, is whether the scheme is legal. The lower courts in Quebec have ruled it is not. That is why the matter is now before the Supreme Court.

That Canada's former laws governing lotteries and sweepstakes were ludicrous has long been agreed by most Canadians. Despite this, successive governments shielded away from amending the Criminal Code to make this type of gambling legal for fear of offending a small percentage of the population. Canadians could blow their pay cheques betting on horse races. They could lose their life's savings buying highly speculative shares on the stock market. But when it came to investing $2 or $3 on a sweepstakes ticket, they were breaking the law.

Now all this is to be changed.

Under the new laws, charitable and religious organizations which conduct lotteries will be limited to $10,000 annually in prize money, and agricultural fairs to $35,000. It will be up to the provinces to determine how attractive they should make their own prizes.

The provinces that decide to operate lotteries must first obtain consent from the others before their tickets can legally cross borders. Some Canadians, mainly churchmen, have suggested that lotteries collide head-on with the historic moral belief: Games of chance, carried on with government approval, encourage gambling, often among families who can least afford it.

Proponents disagree. They view a lottery or sweepstake the same way as any other properly supervised service that the public demands.

Stabbed Nurse Succumbs

Father Sees Death Again

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police commissioners Monday offered a $1,000 reward for information on the killer of a Vancouver nurse who died in hospital Sunday of five stab wounds to her back and neck.

Myrna Louise Inglis, 26, was attacked Wednesday night as she walked home after a night shift at St. Paul's Hospital.

She died in the same hospital, with her father, Dr. H. F. Inglis, at her bedside.

It was the second time in eight months that Dr. Inglis watched one of his children die. Last December he was with his 16-year-old son David when he died of injuries suffered in a motorcycle crash.

Before her death, Miss Inglis told police a man approached her and said, "Don't say anything." Then he knelt her in the stomach and stabbed her repeatedly.

She was left bleeding on a sidewalk. Neighbors heard her screams and saw a tall, thin, curly-haired man running from the scene.

Obscenities Author Jailed Two Months

VANCOUVER (CP) — A provincial court judge Monday ordered a two-month jail sentence for a 20-year-old man who shouted obscenities at Prime Minister Trudeau during a wild peace demonstration here Aug. 8.

Judge David Moffett imposed the sentence of Ronald William Duyker of Vancouver after convicting him of creating a disturbance by shouting and swearing.

The incident occurred during an anti-Vietnam war demonstration in front of the Seaforth Armory where the Liberals were holding a $50-a-plate fund-raising dinner.

SHOUTED DOWN

The prime minister agreed to speak at the rally in advance of the dinner, then was shouted down by hecklers and demonstrators in the crowd.

The crowd jostled with Mr. Trudeau and his advisers as the prime minister made his way inside. A Niagara Falls, Ont., youth later claimed Mr. Trudeau had slapped him.

The youth, Richard Jesmer, 17, attempted to lay an assault charge against Mr. Trudeau but his complaint was dismissed by a justice of the peace.

In passing sentence Monday, Judge Moffett said he wanted to make clear the courts will not tolerate unruly and obscene demonstrations.

"I am satisfied that the disturbance and the use of these words lowered the level of the demonstration to the point where it lacked the element of civilization which Canada has been noted for in the past," said the judge.

"In my mind the deterrent aspect of the sentence is paramount," he added.

Police officers testified Duyker used the same four-letter obscenity in addressing the prime minister several times and later shouted obscenities at police.

SAN SALVADOR, Bahamas (AP) — Sharks ate his clothes and lightning cracked so close he could smell it. Bill Verity came hunter airplane.

Prior to Saturday, Verity was last seen Aug. 14 when a United States Coast Guard cutter offered to tow him away from Debbie. Verity at that time had a smashed rudder, but he declined rescue.

"I insisted with much vigor that I wasn't going to do it," he said.

Verity ripped up planks from his deck to make another rudder while the cutter rode alongside.

"So I say to myself I'll put this thing on and I'll sail through the eye of a hurricane and here's a big cutter following me," he said.

"After three miles the rudder came completely apart and fell into pieces."

"They circled me, but at least the captain was good enough not to smile."

The cutter put over a life raft and gave Verity lumber to make a new rudder. The coast guard helped him attach it and he sailed on.

Once he reached the Bahamian island, Verity had to borrow clothes. He lost his off the European coast while dragging them in the sea to launder them. He said sharks ate them.

Business Topics

Ottawa Sells At Premium

By HARRY YOUNG
Business Editor

The three new government of Canada issues came and went fairly quickly Monday morning, despite the fact they seemed to be adequately priced.

Offered at 8 per cent each and at par were three maturities—Oct. 1, 1970; Oct. 1, 1971, and Oct. 1, 1974. The 1974s are exchangeable into similar bonds maturing in 1986.

The Bank of Canada said it would take $115,000,000 of the $300,000,000 financing.

SMALL DISCOUNT
Despite the fact the only other government of Canada 8-per cent issues were trading at a slight discount, the new bonds were trading quickly at a small premium.

One dealer said the extendable feature on the 1974s was "attractive to institutions."

MORE OPTIMISM
He also noted government leaders and others now were talking more favorably about the possibility of interest rates being lowered in the next few months.

"The atmosphere for bonds is perhaps a little better than it has been at any time since the early spring," he added.

MORE HOMES EMPTY
The number of unoccupied new completed dwelling units in the Victoria area at the end of August was 335 units, according to Central Mortgage and Housing.

The number was more than double the vacancies at the end of July.

The surplus was said to be a sequel to the significantly increased building activity in the first half of 1969.

To the end of August there had been 2,351 housing starts in the area up 70.6 per cent from the 1,730 starts in the corresponding period of 1968.

GREEN LIGHT AHEAD
John Coleman, vice-president of the Royal Bank of Canada, says Canada's economy is not likely to change much for the rest of 1969 but he expects a turn for the better in 1970.

He expects by that time the country will be on its way out of the tight-money cycle and the trend of interest rates will be downward, and that the long-range prospects remain good.

READY TO OPEN
The new forest industry complex at Skookumchuck, owned by Crestbrook Forest Industries, is to be officially opened Oct. 3.

The operation, which includes a pulp mill and new sawmills, is situated on the main Banff-Cranbrook highway 35 miles north of Cranbrook on the Kootenay River.

NET GAIN WIPED OUT
Canada Savings Bonds are having a tough time keeping their heads above water.

The Monetary Statistics, published weekly by Richardson Securities, said Sept. 10 that the net gain in CSBs arising from the November, 1968, campaign had been just ending Sept. 10, a larger-than-average $28,000,000 worth of CSBs was cashed in.

DAMAGES RUN HIGH
The Union Oil Co. of California and its associates paid out $4,600,000 in claims for damages and for cleaning up as a result of the offshore oil well which went out of control off Santa Barbara last winter.

The oil spewed over the beaches, stained the shoreline installations and boats and temporarily ruined the Santa Barbara tourist attractions.

The $4,600,000 spent to June 1 included payment for 9,826 truckloads of straw (used to mop up the oil), 30,000 tons of debris removed, 1,170 boats cleaned or cases settled, and 400 private seaside houses and yards cleaned or cases settled.

By Aug. 1 the total is reported to have risen to about $5,000,000, but some say the job of restoring the beaches has been done so well that "they have never been cleaner."

Boost for Advertising Sanctioned by B.C.

The provincial cabinet has approved $50,000 overspending of the $75,000 department of trade, commerce and industry advertising and publicity budget.

The cabinet order released Monday approved a special warrant to cover the "urgently-needed additional funds. Trade Minister Waldo Skilling said he couldn't immediately be reached for an explanation.

Harvesting Halted In Alberta By Big Snow, Rain

EDMONTON (CP) — Harvesting came to a halt Monday in northern Alberta after a weekend of rain, snow and freezing temperatures.

"Cereal harvesting will not resume until at least the end of the week," said Olen Bratvold, assistant director of the Alberta government's field crops branch.

"It will take two weeks of good weather to complete harvesting in northern Alberta, with about 50 per cent of cereal crops still on the ground."

He said 75 per cent of the cereal crop has been harvested in southern Alberta.

HEAVY SNOW
The public weather office Monday reported heavy snow on the ground in the Slave Lake forest district, 200 miles north of Edmonton.

About 15-17 inches remained on the ground in the Slave Lake area.

Bratvold said harvesting halted in the Peace River area during the weekend when light rain and wet snow fell throughout the district.

Weekend rain and cold temperatures also halted harvesting in the Edmonton area.

Temperatures of 25 degrees were reported at Pincher Creek. Other temperatures were Rocky Mountain House 27, Calgary 29, Edmonton 31 and Peace River area 32.

In Calgary, a light covering of snow remained on grassed areas until mid-morning. It was the first snow for the city since early June when unseasonable weather left a light covering on the ground overnight.

A spokesman for the Alberta Wheat Pool said the light snow would have caused little damage.

Common Market Summit

U.K. Given Chance

BRUSSELS (UPI) — Common Market foreign ministers Monday agreed on a six-nation European summit conference to discuss plans for bringing Britain and other nations into the market, Dutch Foreign Minister Joseph Luns said.

The meeting of heads of government and foreign ministers of the Common Market member nations will be held Nov. 17 and 18 in the Hague, he said.

The meeting will discuss "reinforcement, completion and enlargement" of the European Economic Community the Dutch diplomat added.

The foreign ministers of West

Germany, France, Italy, Holland, Belgium and Luxembourg agreed on the summit over lunch during their first session since the summer recess.

The question of British entry into the Common Market is now unfrozen, "French Foreign Minister Maurice Schumann said after the luncheon at the Carlton Hotel in Brussels.

But other Common Market diplomats were skeptical whether the decision brings Britain's long delayed entry into the market any closer.

Dutch delegation sources said France refused to be drawn into any definite commitment on the start of negotiations with Britain.

The Dutch foreign minister, who presided over Monday's ministerial session, said the EEC executive commission would submit a report on the "consequences" of enlarging the community to the ministers by Oct. 2. Ireland, Norway and Denmark are also applying.

Britain's Surplus Bolsters Stocks

LONDON (UPI) — Britain's foreign trade boomed in August and exports hit a new record to earn the country a trade surplus of $36,000,000, preliminary official figures showed Monday.

The news about the pound sharply higher on foreign exchange markets and cheered the stock market.

This surplus compared with a deficit between what the country bought and sold abroad of $88,800,000 in July.

EXPORTS SOAR
The Board of Trade said adjusted figures may put the surplus at $115,200,000.

Exports climbed steeply in August while imports fell back. The result was that Britain's balance of payments moved much more strongly into the black in August.

NATO 14, Japan Relax Controls on Red Trade

LONDON (AP) — Fourteen North Atlantic Treaty Organization allies and Japan have agreed to relax controls on the export of many strategic goods to the Soviet Union and its Communist partners in Europe.

Diplomats, reporting this Sunday, said the allies also decided the new agreements should not be applied to Communist China, North Vietnam, North Korea and the pro-Peking European Communist state of Albania.

The accord was said to have emerged only after Japan argued in favor of applying the same standards to China and the Soviet Union.

The decisions of the NATO powers and Japan are due to be disclosed officially next month.

LATEST REPORTS
Informants said the decisions reflect latest Western intelligence assessments concerning:

- The relative industrial capacities of the feuding Russians and Chinese.
- The diminishing technological gap between the Soviet bloc and the Western powers.

• The deep-seated allied suspicions of China's ultimate military intentions.

• The prospect of improved economic and political relations with the East European Communist states.

The chief effect of the new agreement will be to make it easier for East European states to buy certain types of commercial computers, rare metals and their alloys, chemical and petroleum equipment, a wide but carefully-defined range of industrial, electrical and transportation goods and specific categories of electronic and precision instruments.

PRECISE DETAILS
The informants, who represented several of the 15 governments involved, said they could not disclose precise details.

The broad international agreement revising allied export controls was reached after months of hard negotiating by a Paris-based body known simply as the Co-ordinating Committee. It consists of all NATO states minus Iceland — but plus Japan, a major pro-Western industrial power.

The committee's role is to oversee general allied policy which is to deny Communist countries any commodity, or technical data that would strengthen their war-potential and thus jeopardize the security of the West.

Red Tape Severed In School Hassle

MONTREAL (CP) — Officials of the Protestant School Board of Greater Montreal sliced through red tape Monday in order to get about 370 English-speaking Roman Catholic children enrolled and ready for classes by next Monday.

Malcolm Stanley, PSBGM district superintendent, said the board was waiting for formal authorization from the suburban St. Leonard Parents Association to hire extra teachers and buy the necessary textbooks.

The board offered to accommodate the children after the St. Leonard board eliminated English-language education in Grades 1 and 2. If the policy is continued, there will be no English instruction in the first seven grades by 1974.

Stanley said most of the Catholic children will be put in classes separate from Protestant children.

He added that parents and teachers in the two schools involved in the offer were "extremely favorable" to instructing the Catholic pupils, most of whom are children of Italian immigrants.

The St. Leonard residents must provide bus service to the nearby Protestant schools and pay $25 a month for each child but it is expected a country-wide fund-raising campaign will offset most of the expenses.

Stanley said the 20 minutes of "moral and religious" instruction required by the Protestant curriculum will be waived for the Catholic pupils.

Quebec Grits Will Have Quiet Summit

QUEBEC (CP) — A "quiet" leadership convention will be held here Jan. 16-17 to choose a successor to Jean Lesage, whose resignation as leader of the Quebec Liberal party was accepted Sunday.

The convention date and site were decided at a special meeting of the 350-member general council which governs the party and which formally accepted Mr. Lesage's Aug. 28 resignation.

Mr. Lesage told a news conference following the closed-door meeting that the convention would not have a "circus atmosphere."

"There will be no fanfare, no majorettes, no noise like at the leadership carnival held by the Union Nationale last June," he said.

Stewart Views Changed About NATO Reduction

By MARJORIE NICHOLS
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA (Special) — At top level meetings in Ottawa Monday, British Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart reiterated concerns held by Britain and other NATO countries over the Canadian decision to reduce its military contributions to the alliance in Europe.

The foreign secretary said at a news conference following four hours of discussions with Prime Minister Trudeau and External Affairs Minister Sharp he was confident the dangers posed by the Canadian move would not materialize.

"Fortunately," he said, "I don't think these dangers will turn into realities."

Despite the public expression of optimism, however, the 64-year-old statesman made it clear that he had still repeated to the Canadian leaders the possible dangers of their actions as foreseen by Britain and other NATO members.

One danger, Stewart said, is that the Canadian move to reduce its troop commitments in Europe might set off a chain reaction among other NATO countries.

The second danger, he said, is that the Soviet bloc might interpret the Canadian move as a weakening of the alliance, and this set back hopes for negotiation between NATO and the Warsaw Pact.

To date, the Canadian government has not made public the precise details of its intended military cutback in NATO forces. Prime Minister Trudeau announced the government's intention to reduce its forces six months ago, promising details later.

Although almost half of their time was spent on the subjects of NATO and east-west relations, the British foreign secretary, Trudeau and Sharp also discussed the Nigeria-Biafra war, the Middle East situation, the European Common Market, and Commonwealth relations.

Stewart also held a brief, impromptu discussion about the Nigeria-Biafra conflict with a handful of demonstrators, who had assembled outside the national press building.

Spy Hill Morale Praised

CALGARY (CP) — The attorney-general's department Monday dismissed a 16-man break from Spy Hill provincial jail Friday as "indicative only of the viciousness of a small group of inmates."

F. C. Oswin, superintendent of correctional institutions for the province, said there was no apparent reason for the escape as there was no overcrowding and staff morale was high.

Some of the escapees were hard-core criminals and had nothing to lose in breaking out of prison, he said.

All but two have been recaptured. Police are still searching for Orval Wilson Hamilton, 25, serving a sentence for armed robbery, and Phillip Gordon Homan, 17, serving two years for assaulting a police officer and possession of stolen property.

FOUR MORE

Ten of the men were rounded up within 12 hours of the escape and four more were captured late Saturday and Sunday.

The escape, in which one guard was taken hostage, started about 9:30 p.m. when two prisoners were to help in serving coffee.

Dagid Darr, 24, taken as hostage, said "suddenly I heard feet running along the hallway and when I turned around there were about a dozen prisoners only 10 feet or so from me."

Darr was overpowered before an alarm was sounded and his keys were taken. The group then moved to the guardroom, gaining control of barrier and alarm controls.

They opened all the barriers separating them from the outside, except for large glass doors at the main entrance. They kicked one of these out and headed for the parking lot where they took Darr's car.

As they sped away from the prison one of the escapees in the back talked incessantly about killing Darr, seated beside the driver.

DEATH PENALTIES

"They were confident they wouldn't be hanged if they killed me, because the federal government has been commuting all death penalties for killing policemen and prison guards to life imprisonment."

When they came over a hill about 25 miles southwest of Calgary an RCMP car was waiting at the bottom. It gave chase and soon caught the escapees who were having engine problems.

Darr jammed his foot onto the brake pedal when the officer pulled alongside, throwing the car into a skid. Escapees piled out of doors and windows but most were quickly rounded up by the lone officer.

Collapse Hurts 200

LISBON (UPI) — An estimated 200 persons were injured Monday when a grandstand filled to capacity collapsed as bulls arrived for a festival at the village of Moita Do Ribatajo, across the Tagus River from this Portuguese capital. Police said 60 were in serious condition.

Maria Jose Baptista, a spectator, said that as the scaffolding began swaying a friend said to her, "we are all going to die here today. And then it went down." Senora Baptista was among the uninjured.

for the government's white paper on disability pensions, released last week, said a press release issued here Monday by Lorne Manchester, editor of the Legion magazine.

The organizations welcomed the government proposal to extend special consideration to Hong Kong veterans.

"But they were critical of the amounts and type of allowances proposed for multiple disability casualties and they expressed keen disappointment that the government had not taken any action on the basic rate question."

They were also critical of the planned reorganization of the pension appeal system. The proposed establishment of an appeal division within the pension commission does not provide an independent appeal body as requested by veterans organizations and recommended by the Woods committee report, said Monday's release.

The groups meeting in Montreal described as a "totally unsatisfactory remedy" the government proposal to provide special additional allowances for 100-per-cent disability pensioners—those now getting the maximum rate of pension.

Helpful Policemen Spoil Robbery by Wheelchair

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — A gun-toting paraplegic, crippled during a 1967 robbery attempt, fell from his wheelchair Sunday and was arrested as he tried to flee after a variety store robbery, police said.

Detectives said Jeffrey Meruked, 29, a paraplegic, was wheeled from the store by an accomplice. Both were caught.

Two cruiser policemen learned of the robbery when they stopped to help Meruked. Police said he fell to the sidewalk outside the store because he was being wheeled too fast.

Held on robbery charges were Meruked, of suburban West Seneca, and Leroy Workman, 18, of Buffalo. Meruked also was charged with a weapons-law violation.

Police said Workman wheeled Meruked into the store where Meruked pulled a pistol from his belt and demanded money.

The store owner, Joseph Black, ducked behind a counter but police said Meruked aimed the gun at Black's 11-year-old grandson Kevin Black.

The boy put $198 in a paper bag and gave it to Meruked, police said.

The pair turned and fled.

Fast Greens Could Sway Ryder Cup: Faulkner

Shoulders to the wheel... advance as one man... all pull together... fight the good fight... England expects. Choose your cliché and I'll agree with it, for this week Great Britain takes on America in the Ryder Cup.

By tradition, of course, this means that we are on the threshold of another humiliating drubbing. We haven't won it since way back in 1957 and the size of some of our beatings since then has quite reasonably suggested that perhaps we should swallow our pride and abandon the competition. Well, to hell with such dismal thoughts! For a start I have just had a sneak preview of the way they're preparing the course up at Royal Birkdale. And from what I saw there I believe Britain is at last going to come to its senses and see that the greens are English-style as opposed to American style.

This is more important than the non-golfer could ever imagine. English-style greens are fast-running. American greens are so lush and heavily-watered that you can stop a high approach shot on them as dead as a dart sticking in a dart board.

POSITIVELY NEUROTIC
The techniques required of a golfer are so vastly different that while British players are not happy on American greens, American golfers get positively neurotic about playing on British greens.

My argument has always been that there is nothing like playing against neurotic opponents. That's how it was at Lindrick in 1957 when we beat America. And I'm just keeping my fingers crossed that our officials don't get cold feet at Birkdale some time before the Ryder Cup starts and suddenly start pouring thousands of gallons of water on their greens just to prove what excellent hosts they are!

WE CAN WIN
I would put it this way: If we give the Yanks an American-type course we haven't got a hope in hell. If we keep it traditionally British we CAN win — and that's more than I have been able to predict for the past decade of Ryder Cup battles.

My only other hope is that the British team go into action in full unity. And this is the responsibility of our captain, Eric Brown.

Already he has had a little trouble on his hands. In asking his men to fall-in on parade four days before it begins he was putting pressure on at least a couple of them who had clashing engagements.

REQUIRES TACT
You have to remember that golfers are not team men by instinct like cricketers and footballers. Ninety-five per cent of their professional lives is spent fighting for themselves. They are ultra-individualistic, highly-temperamental and often quarrelsome creatures. Binding them together into a team for just one important event requires as much tact and understanding as running the Bolshoi Ballet.

I don't intend to enter into the rights or wrongs of Eric Brown's "Fall In" decree. A captain must run his campaign as he sees fit for the occasion. All I pray is that when the bugle sounds the entire British team walks out with the united intention of tearing America to pieces.

AURA WEARING OFF
Why I believe that Britain has a better chance now than for the past few years is that the "aura" of American players as invincible automatons is beginning to wear off.

One of the reasons is Tony Jacklin's brilliant Open Championship victory. Another is the defeat of America by a Commonwealth side in a recent television series of matches. But most important of all, the younger British players simply haven't got an inferiority complex about Americans.

Two of the youngest Britons I know best are Brian Barnes and Bernard Gallacher. Two weeks ago they were smashing their way through to first and second places in an important tournament. One week ago they were both shooting 80s in the Match Play Championship and failing to qualify.

TREMENDOUS FIRE
There's impetuosity about them, but there's also tremendous fire. And it's fire that wins the big ones.

My only real advice to Eric Brown, therefore, is to pair young Barnes and Gallacher together and send them out in the top foursomes match. I'm convinced that's the way to give Britain a flying start.

Anyway, as an older Ryder Cup hand myself, good luck to this British team. Let's hope that by the end of the week we shall be staging the second huge British golf celebration of this wonderful year.

NHL Referees Quit Camp, Seek Group Recognition

BRANTFORD, Ont. (CP) — Twenty referees, members of the National Hockey League Officials' Association, walked out of training camp Monday night after issuing an ultimatum to referee-in-chief Scotty Morrison.

Morrison said the walkout was in support of demands that the NHL recognize the association.

Nineteen other referees, not members of the association, will remain at camp which ends Thursday, Morrison said.

"As far as we are concerned we have 19 first-class officials in camp, and they are going to continue to train here and get into shape."

The association, represented by Joe Kane, a Toronto lawyer and former president of the Central Professional Hockey League, has 25 members.

Morrison said the referees wanted their legal adviser to sit in on all negotiations for salaries and working conditions.

"We weren't prepared to do that," Morrison said.

Morrison said that among the senior referees who remained at the camp were John Ashley and Art Skov, as well as senior linesmen Matt Pavlich, Neil Armstrong and Claude Bechard.

Vern Ruffey, a senior official, was among those who walked out.

The officials handle games in the National, American, Western and Central leagues, and are here for a special conditioning camp. Their association was formed during the summer months.

Morrison said he has enough men to handle pre-season NHL exhibitions which start Thursday when Toronto Maple Leafs play St. Louis Blues in Ottawa.

In Montreal, NHL president Clarence Campbell said the league will "take the necessary steps to fill the gap."

He said the league governors have already made a formal decision not to recognize the association, and this left the league no other course of action but to find replacements.

Campbell said the nature of the officials' job does not lend itself to the formation of organizations.

PUNCH IMLACH, dep. general manager-coach of Toronto Maple Leafs, says that he does not want to come west this year but will visit Vancouver this week to talk to Canuck general manager Joe Cradler anyway. NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — Wayne Goss scored four goals Monday to lead New Westminster to a 12-9 victory over Coquitlam Adanacs in the Western Lacrosse Association final, before 3,700 fans.

The Salmonbellies took the best-of-seven series in four straight games to win a berth in the Canadian professional final, starting Sept. 22 at the home of the eastern winner.

Al Leachman was the only other New Westminster player to score more than once. He had two goals and three assists. Other goals were scored by

Bob Resanoff scored five goals on five shots for Coquitlam. Kevin Parsons, Kerry Gallagher, Dick Crompton and John Allen each scored one.

New Westminster outshot Adanacs, 64-48.

Montreal's victory over Chicago was their fourth straight win, a club record, while the loss was the third straight for Chicago and 11th in the last 12 games for Cubs.

Ron Fairly drove in four runs for Expos with a pair of doubles and a two-run homer.

St. Louis remained in third place when Philadelphia Phillies swept a doubleheader from fourth-place Pittsburgh Pirates, ending Bob Veale's eight-game win streak with a 2-1 victory in the opener and then took the nightcap, 4-3.

In the Western Division, San Francisco Giants moved to within half a game of leading Atlanta by defeating the Braves, 4-1, behind the five-hit pitching of Mike McCormick.

Willie Mays, who dropped a fly ball from Hank Aaron to set up Atlanta's first-inning run, more than made up for it with a run-scoring double in the bottom of the inning and added his 599th career homer in the sixth.

REDS CLIMB

Cincinnati Reds jumped into third place, one game off the pace, by snapping Los Angeles Dodgers' four-game win streak with a 4-1 decision. Dodgers drop to fourth place, only a game and a half behind Atlanta.

Tony Perez' two-run single sparked a three-run third inning for the Reds off loser Claude Osteen.

Houston Astros dropped five and a half games back when they lost for the fifth straight time, 3-5, to the last-place San Diego Padres.

NINTH SHUTOUT

In the American League, Denny McLain became the major league's top winner, capturing his 23rd victory as Detroit Tigers blanked New York Yankees, 2-0.

It was the ninth shutout of the season for the 1968 Cy Young award-winner, who yielded only two singles, a first-inning blow by Roy White and another by Jerry Kennedy in the fourth.

McLain, who has lost only seven games, got all the help he needed in the third inning when Al Kaline singled with two out and scored on Norm Cash's triple. Cash came home on a wild pitch.

TWINS BOOST LEAD

Minnesota Twins boosted their lead over Oakland in the Eastern Division to nine games with a 6-3 victory over the Athletics as Harmon Killebrew hit his 43rd home run to bring his personal high total to 131 runs batted in.

Any combination of Minnesota wins and Oakland losses totalling eight will give Twins the pennant.

CELTICS NAME NEW COACH

BOSTON (AP) — Tommy Heinsohn, 33, who helped Boston Celtics to eight championships in nine years as a player, returned to the National Basketball Association team Monday as coach.

He succeeds Bill Russell, who announced his retirement in July to try to become a Hollywood actor, leaving a contract which would have paid him more than $200,000 for the season.

Britain Warns Of Threat To Olympics

By JAMES CONWAY
LONDON (CP) — Britain has confronted the sporting world with a black forecast: If the barriers between amateur and professional sport aren't torn down soon, the shaky structure of international sport, including the Olympic Games, will collapse within 10 or 15 years.

The government-appointed Sports Council, led by Sports Minister Denis Howell, has challenged the world to modify the segregation of sport first instituted by Britain a century ago.

In a report, it states that under the current professionalism is already damaging the principle of amateur sport, giving those nations which bend the regulations an unfair advantage in international competition.

According to the Solunar Tables calculated for this area, the best times for hunting and fishing today and tomorrow will be as follows (These times are Pacific Daylight time):

Bob Cousy Ready To Try Comeback Celtics Balk

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Royals of the National Basketball League opened a 10-day training camp Monday still uncertain of the status of their coach, Bob Cousy, who wants to come back as an active player.

The Royals have asked Arnold "Red" Auerbach, general manager of Boston Celtics to release Cousy from the voluntarily retired list. Cousy starred there 13 seasons and retired in 1963.

Joe Axelson, Royals general manager, says Auerbach wants a player from the Royals in return for releasing Cousy.

"I assume he's talking about one of our big men," Cousy said Monday at a press conference.

"I'm not going to give up any one player because, frankly, all those guys out there could probably do a better job than I could."

Defending Champions Reach Soccer Semis

Franz Van Doesburg scored three goals Sunday to lead defending-champion Oak Bay to the semi-finals of the McGavin Cup soccer competition with a 5-2 victory over Causeway Esso Hotspurs at Royal Athletic Park.

John Hughes scored the other two goals for the first-division District League club while Ross Swanton, with two goals and Andy Blyth replied for the second-division Spurs.

Winning Visitors Besieged by Fans

CATANZARO (Reuters) — About 1000 angry local soccer fans, hurling stones, besieged a winning visiting team for several hours Sunday night in Italy's second soccer riot in a week.

The fans stormed onto the field when the referee disallowed a goal made by the local team in the last minute, giving the visiting team a 1-0 victory.

The referee, the linesmen and the visiting Piacenza team all hurriedly took refuge in the dressing rooms.

Police reinforcements were called in from nearby towns as crowds tried to break their way in. A charge dispersed them, but they regrouped outside the stadium, still calling for the referee.

A policeman's arm was broken and several spectators injured in the struggle.

The siege lasted several hours. The visitors' vehicles had their tires punctured.

Finally, riot police flanked by a strong motorcycle escort drove forcibly through the crowd, picked up the captives, and roared out through a barrage of stones and angry shouts to a heavily-guarded railway station.

The last week has seen an ominous start to the soccer season in southern Italy.

The town of Caserta exploded into full-scale rioting five days ago after hearing that the local team was relegated to the third division for an alleged bribery case. The disturbances lasted two days.

And Friday, thousands of demonstrators marched through Ragusa in Sicily, peacefully this time, to protest the relegation of the local amateur team for employing a semi-professional last season.

World Cup Tie

PRAQUE (AP) — Czechoslovakia and Hungary played to a 3-3 tie Sunday in a World Cup soccer qualification game. Last May, Hungary won the first game, 2-0, in Budapest.

Cox Wins Title in Playoff City Golfers Share Fourth

QUEBEC (CP) — Bob Cox of Richmond sank a 20-foot birdie putt on the second hole of a sudden-death playoff Sunday to defeat Mike Norman of Gifford, Ont., for the Canadian Professional Golfers Association tour championship.

Cox, 20-footer won him first prize money of $3,000 and the Carling Trophy. Norman picked up $2,200, failing to repeat the playoff victory he registered last year when he defeated Vancouver's Wayne Vollmer on the second hole of a playoff.

Cox and Norman had finished the regulation 54-hole distance at 211, five under par.

Norman watched a birdie putt slip by the cup on the second playoff hole by about six inches.

Cox, who went into Sunday's third round three strokes off the pace, turned in a four-under-par 35-38 card for his 211. Norman started the final round two strokes behind second-round leader Bill Wakeham of Victoria, who had a 36-hole total of 140, and shot a three-under-par 34-35-69.

Joe Zuger Sidelined With Finger Injury

HAMILTON (CP) — Joe Zuger of Hamilton Tiger-Cats will be out of the quarterbacking job with the Eastern Football Conference club for about three weeks until a finger injury heals.

Zuger said he didn't know how he picked up the injury late in the third quarter of Sunday's game at Regina. (See Page 14.) The skin and flesh on the little finger of his left hand was torn from the first joint to the tip.

Quarterbacking duties will fall on either Hamilton native John Masel, 22, who completed three of six passes Sunday for a touchdown, or import John Eckman who was cut last year by Atlanta Falcons of the National Football League.

The Ticon's next game is against Montreal Alouettes here Sunday.

Coffey Extends Lead Over Scoring Rivals

REGINA (CP) — Tommy Joe Coffey opened up a runaway lead in the Eastern Football Conference scoring race Sunday as he collected 18 points in Hamilton Tiger-Cats' 31-29 victory over Saskatchewan Roughriders in an interlocking contest.

Coffey now has 93 points on eight touchdowns, 15 converts, eight field goals and five singles.

Trailing Coffey, with 77 points, is Don Sutherland of Ottawa Rough Riders who scored 12 points as Ottawa defeated Toronto Argonauts 26-23 Saturday.

Sutherland kicked three field goals, three singles and a convert and now has one touchdown, 24 converts, 13 field goals and eight singles.

Toronto's Dave Mann follows with 51 points. He added five points Saturday on three converts and two singles.

Coffey put on another one-man show against the Roughriders catching two touchdowns, kicking four converts and adding two single points on wide-field-goal attempts. Garney Henley and Willie Bethea each scored a touchdown and Joe Zuger kicked a single point.

George Redd plunged for two Saskatchewan touchdowns and Bobby Thompson got the other two on long pass-and-run plays. Jack Abendschan kicked three converts and two singles.

ENDS STRING

It was Saskatchewan's first loss at home in regular-season play since Oct. 22, 1967, when Calgary Stampeders won 19-11.

Hamilton's victory gave them six wins and a tie for 13 points, one better than Ottawa Rough Riders, who have six wins and one loss.

Zuger, who shared quarterbacking duties in the second half with John Manel and John Eckman, completed 13 of 27 pass attempts in a strong Hamilton aerial attack.

For Saskatchewan, Ron Lancaster connected on 12 of 25 pass tries.

QUICK TOUCHDOWN

Hamilton took the opening kickoff and scored on the second play from scrimmage on a 68-yard pass-and-run play from Zuger to Coffey.

But Roughriders rallied with two singles by Abendschan, an unconverted touchdown on a pass-and-run play from Lancaster to Bobby Thompson which covered 83 yards and a touchdown by George Reed on a nine-yard run. Abendschan converted and Saskatchewan led 15-7 by the end of the first quarter.

Roughriders still led 22-15, at the half but Hamilton picked up two singles and Coffey caught another touchdown pass as Ticats moved ahead 24-22.

In the fourth quarter, Charlie Brown intercepted a Lancaster pass near mid-field then Manel threw to Bethea, twice to Viti and completed a drive with a 20-yard pass to Henley in the end zone.

Roughriders stormed back with Thompson catching a pass near mid-field and streaking over for the score on a 72-yard play.

The game was played before 19,556 fans, with temperatures in the high 60s and a wind gusting to 28 miles an hour.

Injury Leads To Death

CINCINNATI (AP) — The death of Cincinnati Bengals' linebacker Frank J. Buncom resulted from a knee injury suffered last week in practice, the Hamilton county coroner ruled Monday.

Dr. Frank Cleveland said a clot formed in Buncom's knee moved to his lungs and caused heart failure. He called the case a pulmonary emboli, due to the injury of a knee.

Buncom, 29, an eight-year pro, two years with the Bengals of the American Football League, died in his downtown hotel room Sunday.

Jets Spoil O.J.'s Debut

By The Associated Press

A record crowd of 46,165 turned out Sunday at Buffalo's War Memorial Stadium to see Joe Namath's arm and O. J. Simpson's legs. The anatomy left something to be desired, but no one was demanding his money back.

Namath, New York Jets' quarterback, passed for one touchdown and Buffalo Bills' Simpson ran for one in his pro debut as the champion Jets turned back the stubborn Bills 33-19 in their American Football League opener.

Elsewhere in the AFL, Oakland Raiders held off Houston Oilers 21-17, Kansas City Chiefs trounced San Diego Chargers 27-9, Denver Broncos walloped Boston Patriots 35-7 and Cincinnati Bengals topped Miami Dolphins 27-21.

Namath's statistics showed only seven completions in 19 attempts—he was intercepted three times—for 157 yards.

Next game, Wednesday — Edmonton vs. B.C. at Vancouver.

EDMONTON (CP) — Quarterback Corey Colehour scored three touchdowns and directed Edmonton Eskimos to their first win in seven starts with a 30-16 decision over Winnipeg Blue Bombers in a Western Football Conference game Sunday.

It was the first win for the Eskimos after six consecutive defeats and moved them within one point of the third-place Bombers.

The Eskimos, who won their opening game of the season 33-0 over the Bombers, led 8-0 after the first quarter before 12,600 fans. Edmonton increased the margin to 14-8 in the second quarter but trailed 16-14 after 45 minutes.

OTHER ESK POINTS

Jim Thomas got the Edmonton touchdown on a three-yard run in the second quarter. Dave Oulter added two converts, a 29-yard field goal and a 35-yard single on a wide field-goal attempt.

Butch Pressley scored Winnipeg's only touchdown midway through the third quarter on a four-yard pass from quarterback Wally Gabler. Pierre Guindon booted three field goals — two from 36 yards out and another from 18 yards and added a convert to complete Winnipeg's scoring.

THREE INTERCEPTIONS

Gabler and the Bombers were foiled on numerous occasions by a strong Edmonton defence, which made three interceptions, two by safety John Wydareny.

The game was played in 34-degree temperatures with winds gusting to 30 miles an hour.

The difference in the game was in the rushing department where the Eskimos picked up 197 yards along the ground in their total offense of 259. The Bombers had 87 yards rushing and 120 passing as Gabler completed 13 of 34 attempts.

Colehour, who called 49 rushing plays compared with Winnipeg's 23, completed four of six passes.

WINNING SURGE

In the fourth quarter, with the Bombers leading 16-14, the Eskimos moved from their own 30 to the Winnipeg one-yard line in seven plays before Colehour plunged into the end zone to give the Eskimos a 21-16 margin.

At 9:17 of the fourth quarter Oulter kicked a field goal and three minutes later Edmonton got its final touchdown with the aid of a 44-yard run by Thermus Butler.

BLOCKED PUNT

The Eskimos got a touchdown early in the second quarter when Jerry Griffin blocked Ed Ulmer's punt on the Winnipeg 14. Ron Forwick of the Eskimos recovered the ball and Thomas scored on the third play from the Winnipeg six.

Choice.

The choice import now brings you a choice... 7 models in 3 series. That's what's called a choice choice.

Here's why Cortina is the choice import:

This is a great car. And, while it comes at a small car price, you get a car that thinks big. First, trunk space. There's 21 cubic feet of it. The back seat is designed for 3 people. In front, comfortable bucket seats are standard, as is Cortina's Aeroflow Ventilation system with extractors to make summer driving cooler and fresher. And there's a special Winter Driving Package to handle Canada's super-cold winters; front disc brakes, 4 speed fully synchronized transmission, and the North American Safety package. All Cortina engines are of the "bowl-in-piston" design, to provide efficiency, great performance, and the utmost in fuel economy. All this, and Cortina's low price tag makes Cortina the choice import.

Here's how you get your choice with the choice import.

Cortina (lower right) This is the lowest priced series, and comes in 2 door and 4 door models. A fully automatic transmission is optional. The standard all vinyl interiors are comfortable and stylish.

Cortina DeLuxe (lower left) Both 2 and 4 door models offer a choice of 6 colour keyed interiors and deep embossed vinyl seats. Added luxury touches are everywhere.

Cortina GT (top) The powerful 1600 cc GT engine is race and rally proven. Power brakes, genuine wood panelled dash, full instrumentation including a tach and clock, close ratio sports shift and GT stripes are all standard.

Cortina wagon (not illustrated) The Cortina wagon gives you a big 70.5 cubic feet of load space, the largest in its class. A 1600 cc engine is standard, as are power brakes (disc front, drum rear).

Mayor, Chief Resign

CAIRO, Ill. (AP) — Police Chief William Petersen and Mayor Lee Stenzel resigned Monday in the face of increasing racial tensions in this southern Illinois city.

Stenzel said he was hopeful his resignation would lead "to a peaceful solution of our present dilemma with the result that people will once again live in harmony."

Petersen, who has been police chief since June after coming out of retirement, said he was fearful that "before many more hours pass, there will be bloodshed in this community despite what efforts are being made to prevent it."

"When people of the entire community, white and black, state they are going to arm themselves and take the law into their own hands, then I as a professional policeman cannot continue to head this police department," Petersen said.

Family Unhurt, Goldfish Swims On

Blast Buckles Home

By NANCY BROWN

Neva Robinson, 3231 Linwood turned up the thermostat in her home at about 7:30 p.m. Monday, and the house exploded.

Basement walls were blown out, the living room floor was raised a foot and chimney bricks flew across the living room when the furnace ignited gas fumes from a leaking gas main in the street outside the $30,000 house.

All four persons in the house escaped injury. In the wreckage, the family goldfish continued to swim lazily in its aquarium.

"It was a miracle that no one was hurt," said contractor Lloyd Robinson, who designed and built his three-year-old home. "The basement door was blown right into the living room — the doorknob landed just behind the chest-dresser."

"I had no idea what had happened. One minute everything was fine, and the next there was this bang and the floor heaved up under my feet."

The house was full of smoke, and there was glass all around.

"I went out the bedroom window because the door was jammed, and then went in again through another door to see if there was anyone else in the house," said Mr. Robinson.

Mrs. Robinson escaped through the hall door, while boarder Ed Morgan, 18, rushed through and took the Robinson's daughter Sharon, 3, out of the house with him. Two Saanich fire trucks and 10 men fought a basement fire that followed the blast, but Fire Chief Joe Sutherland said it was extinguished without trouble. All basement walls and furniture were seared and blackened, and the blast knocked plaster off the basement wall of a neighbor's home.

It took a B.C. Hydro crew wearing gas masks until about 11:15 p.m. to seal the hole in the main. The hole, about as thick as a pencil, allowed the gas to seep into the basement through storm drain tile.

"We smelled gas about 5:30 p.m.," said Mr. Robinson. "And I went downstairs and changed the furnace filter and took the Coleman stove out of the basement. We didn't smell anything after that."

Mr. Robinson said repairs might be impossible, as all the foundations were either blown out or bowed. The family moved in with friends, but Mr. Robinson said he expected to move back into an older house at the rear of the property. The family lived in it while building their new home.

Can Life Survive Past 2025?

Chant Proposes University by TV

By CLEMENT CHAPPEL

The author of the 1960 royal commission on education has proposed that undergraduate university courses be given completely by television to offset climbing education costs that, by the 1990s, will equal the gross national product.

S. N. F. Chant, now chairman of the committee that cuts the B.C. universities grants pie, told about 100 University of Victoria extension lecture-goers that "the writing is on the wall": the endless education cost spiral must be met with sweeping changes at all levels or learning will price itself out of existence.

His proposal for TV learning would have to come despite nostalgia-minded educators who see the past in terms "rosier than the truth."

"Young people are going to have to face a big, impersonal world, so they had better start getting used to it now," said the former UBC arts and sciences dean.

Quoting federal deputy finance minister R. B. Bryce, Dean Chant said by 1994 the cost of universities, should they continue their present growth, will equal the gross national product which grows at a rate of only eight or nine per cent a year.

Dean Chant's proposal for an all-TV undergraduate degree course could be interspersed with three-month intensive sessions at a university for discussion, laboratory and practical work, if and when a student reaches a required standard. Studies would then be resumed via the tube.

By this method, students could work at their own speeds. Left "more to their own resources," the slackers would not clog the university halls, something Dean Chant said he would not consider an evil.

The TV method would also meet the mounting demand that every person should receive the opportunity to attend university.

An alternative to the all-TV approach, he said, would be for the first two years to be held on TV, leaving the final undergraduate years and professional and graduate years within the regular university walls.

Cost-cutting will also require a province-wide system of running universities, rather than separate organizations for each institution, Dean Chant said.

Regional colleges, he said, have already gone a long way towards providing answers. Last year, he said, students transferred from the regional colleges into universities showed a lower failure rate than students who began in university.

Empire builders in administration should be protested against by students, Dean Chant said.

A " plethora of assistant deans" and other redundant posts has "broken out of the academic skin," tending to "widen the gap between academics and administration."

Senators (academic governors) and boards of governors (financial governors) "are bound to be abolished" and replaced by a single body. At present, the two bodies are "an awkward waste of time."

Dean Chant also criticized university teachers who are only interested in "their stock and trade" — worried that their "dignity be affronted." This must be offset by "sweeping changes in curriculum." Much of the academic jargon must be abolished: "so much of it is just a cover-up for ignorance anyway."

Universities, in any case, are being threatened by other means of higher learning, notably, courses offered by business to provide personnel advancement. But in the fields of liberal arts, theoretical sciences and human purposes and values, the universities cannot be assailed, Dean Chant said.

Universities from now on "will have to exist in the midst of disquiet." Faced with the problems of overpopulation, genetic impairment from nuclear fallout, biological warfare and atmospheric oxygen depletion, it is doubtful that life can survive past the year 2025, said Dean

Chant, quoting what he said were authorities.

"Even religion has become less persuasive... surely the young must rise up and protest about what is being done to their world. Those who think the world will return to some level of stability are deluding themselves."

Community Institution

B.C. Wants College Reins

By BILL STAVDAL

Greater Victoria school board has been given to understand by Education Minister Donald Brocks that a proposed community college here would be favored if it were controlled by the government instead of by the school board.

This was the report brought back to the board Monday after a meeting last week of three trustees with the education minister.

The trustees want to develop the Institute of Adult Studies into a district college run by the board alone. Regional colleges are governed by a council to which the government appoints a majority of members.

Planning for the proposed college was suspended last spring after it was learned that Mr. Brocks had ordered a study of possible co-ordination of regional colleges and provincial vocational schools.

Last week board chairman Dr. Carron Jameson visited the education minister, accompanied by trustees George Curran and Allan McKinnon.

Dr. Jameson reported at Monday's school board meeting that the minister was "not immediately hopeful" that the college project could go ahead.

He said the trustees offered on behalf of the school board to take over administration of the vocational school now under construction in Royal Oak.

Trustee McKinnon said the interview was "the most discouraging morning I've had in a long time."

"We want a district college, and we were given to understand that they want a regional college," he said.

"If we give in, I think we could have a regional college a lot sooner than we'll get a district college."

ENROLMENT SOARING
He suggested that the board should be willing to abandon its position if necessary for the sake of would-be students seeking education in Greater Victoria.

Enrolment at the Institute of Adult Studies is soaring, said adult education director Jack Dalgleish. He reported that enrolment in the day division is now 618, compared with 546 last year, and that registration is expected to total 700.

Evening division registration in Grade 12 is now 755, compared with 619 last winter. The board was told that the Institute's first offering of three university-level courses has been heavily enrolled.

FIRST YEAR
Students last year asked for first-year university courses in psychology, economics and geography. Some senior matriculation courses authorized by the department of education are not acceptable in university as a basis for further study.

Enrolment in the three new courses totals 280, Mr. Dalgleish reported.

The school board ordered a letter sent to the department requesting "early changes" in senior matriculation courses. The board also will seek the views of Saanich and Sooke school boards on a regional vs. district college.

Dairy Owner Charged

When of Vagrancy Problem for Court

Byron McNutt was arrested at 4 a.m. Monday on a vagrancy charge and locked up in a Victoria police cell.

A vagrancy charge consists of three separate parts, all of which must coincide before a person can be considered a vagrant.

If a person does not have any apparent means of support, he comes partly under the charge.

But Mr. McNutt owns a sizable dairy farm at 4143 Wilkinson Road.

If a person cannot justify his presence at the time of questioning, he may again be a prospective vagrant.

Mr. McNutt, however, told the policeman that he was going to Saanich.

And finally, if a person has no fixed address, he satisfies part of the charge.

Mr. McNutt, on the other hand, has lived at 4150 Grange for the past 50 years.

"The house is worth a pretty penny, too," Mr. McNutt told Judge William Ostler in Victoria Provincial Court.

"So, I don't know if I'm a vagrant," he added thoughtfully, stroking his long beard. "There seem to be some interesting aspects to this case," Judge Ostler said.

"Very interesting," Mr. McNutt agreed. He pleaded not guilty to the charge, was remanded for trial until this afternoon and was released on his own recognizance.

Ogden Point Rescue

Boy, Fish Stick Together

When Stephen Green, 8, of 135 Beckley, fell off the railway deck at Ogden Point Sunday afternoon, he thought he was a goner.

He'd taken swimming lessons, but when the water closed over his head, he panicked.

Jim Fleet, 15, 252 Superior, was skin-diving in the area. He was out resting on a post when he saw Stephen tumble off the dock still holding the fish Jim had given him a few moments earlier.

Jim jumped in after the younger boy. "When I pulled him out, he was still hanging on to that fish," Jim said.

Stephen was shaken when Jim got him safely landed, but he remembered to take the fish home to mother, Mrs. Janet Green.

Mrs. Green said, "I think he was more worried about that fish than he was about himself." But, Stephen said, "the fish got thrown out."

Police Wary of Commission

Mediation May Be the Last

There was a hint Monday night that disgruntled police might refuse in future to deal with the controversial B.C. Mediation Commission.

"We are going before the commission this time, but if we only get a rubber stamp of the unfair deal Victoria got, it may well be the last time," Oak Bay police Sgt. Jack Groves said.

Sgt. Groves heads the Oak Bay Police Association. It and the Saanich Police Union, headed by Constable Norman Christman, will have their wage issue settled on a compulsory arbitration basis by the commission.

Sgt. Groves said he and other police representatives were not happy with the results of a meeting Monday with Labor Minister Leslie Peterson.

Mr. Peterson felt the case would have to go before the commission and did not favor a police recommendation that he personally serve as a mediator, Sgt. Groves said.

He said police representatives had suggested he meet with their groups and the police commissions in the two municipalities.

"But now we are going before the commission, we are going to fight this thing," Sgt. Groves said. "Anyone familiar with the situation will know there were certain weaknesses in the commission's decision, which granted Victoria only a 14.56-per-cent increase."

One such weakness, he said, was the fact the wage gap between Lower Mainland and Greater Victoria police would now be widened.

"There was no evidence at all to justify the widening of this gap," he said. Police would also try to strengthen their bargaining stand by having all 11 forces in the B.C. Federation of Peace Officers negotiating new contracts at the same time, Sgt. Groves said.

This year half a dozen had contracts expire at the same time.

"The others will now go for a one-year contract so the next time around all 11 of us will be in this together," he said.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I had not seen my sister in three years. She is 40 years old and her two children are grown. When Erma and her husband met me at the airport I was shocked to see she had gotten so heavy.

I concluded she was pregnant and I said so. She became furious and shouted, "You are out of your mind! I have a thyroid condition but it's under control now."

I stayed a week and we had a pleasant time. Erma took pills in my presence and kept a doctor's appointment, but she didn't talk any more about her thyroid condition. I left Madison Tuesday. The following Friday I received a telegram from Erma. It read, "Guess who gave birth to an eight-pound boy!"

Just Burned Up

I'm burned up because my sister had to me. Why would a person do such a crazy thing? Surely she knew I'd learn the truth eventually. Help me understand. I am — Baffled and Boiling.

DEAR BAFF: I suspect your 40-year-old sister was less than thrilled when she learned she was pregnant. Her refusal to make the announcement spared her the embarrassment of discussing her condition. Unrealistic, yes—even, foolish. But it's history now, so forget it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Two years ago the problem

Check for Allergy

Dear Off: It sounds as if you might be allergic to a late summer weed that grows around your house. Ask an allergist to make a house call so he can see you when your nose is swollen and you whistle is operating.

Dear Readers: This is an open letter to the La Leche Society and its hundreds of members who wrote to tell me I am irresponsible, crazy, cruel, uninformed, sarcastic and stupid.

The letters came in response to my comments on the young mother who was breast feeding her baby in the

Washington, D.C. airport. I am not, repeat not, against breast feeding. I believe breast feeding is beneficial to both mother and child—and the mother is willing and able. (Some mothers are willing but not able. Others are able but not willing.)

I am against breast feeding in public, however, when there are restrooms all over the place, such as in the Washington, D.C. airport. And P.S., I'd like to congratulate the La Leche Society. They have a letter-writing membership that could break a mailman's back.

Dear Old Mother Image Secret of Granny Boot

By MARIAN CHRISTY

Men feel threatened by women's emancipation. The controversial subject foams to the fore whenever a woman marches by nattily attired in a man-tailored pantsuit. That's when men begin to sputter.

Admittedly, something happens when a woman dons a pair of trousers. She takes bigger, surer strides and she stomps and clumps along instead of gliding. Men, the heretofore undisputed superior sex, can't help but feel a storm is brewing. Collectively, they visualize that women are walking all over them.

Fashion designers have heard the male's shrill cry of disenchantment. Fashion is gunning for equality of the sexes—but only up to a point. Most chic 1969-70 fashion remains the pantsuit but, and here's the point, the accompanying shoe of the year is the granny boot.

The "granny" that precedes the word "boot" presumably takes the curse off the pantsuit look and the independent air it gives a woman.

Paris' Roger Vivier, the famous shoe maker who creates footwear for prestigious houses like Christian Dior and Yves Saint Laurent, is the first to admit that granny boots project a motherly image that is instantly dear to the heart.

"It's the most sought-after look of all," says Vivier whose collection for the coming fall-winter season is filled with renditions of Mother Hubbard shoes selling to so-called Beautiful People such as Lauren Bacall and Mrs. David Bruce, wife of the former British Ambassador to the United States.

All this saccharine sentimentality has turned designers into amateur psychologists.

Most-herd philosophy backing the granny-boot trend is this: The world is full of destructive forces and somehow it's comforting to the psyche to wear shoes that are reminiscent of grandmama and a time when things weren't quite so dreary.

Hence, the mass march to shoes that are revivals of a past era with safer connota-

ERMA BOMBECK's Survival Kit

Trading with the Lunch Bunch

The first day of school I packed my son a lunch containing a bag of assorted bar nibbles, eight plums, a ballpoint pen and a banana. Barter-wise, he tells me it was near perfect. The bar nibbles brought a ten-cent candy bar; the plums, a gum eraser; the ballpoint pen, a cupcake. (He ate the banana.)

Since then my lunches have gone steadily downhill. On Monday of last week I packed my CARE Package banana. (Or, "Who Ate The Refrigerator Light Bulb Over The Weekend?")

I sent a peanut butter and jelly jammed between two bread heels, a single apple with craters and a chocolate Santa Claus.

On Tuesday, I favored him with my Air Rescue Survival Kit lunch. This contains two frozen pieces of bread surrounding a piece of cheese with a roll of breath mints and a bag of dried apricots. (Jean Kerr is right. They do look like ears!) Wednesday was challenge day. It was a challenge to unscrew the thermos top without a lug wrench and an additional challenge to eat its contents without a fork or spoon.

Thursday was the day before the end of the week, which means lunch can be anything from a bread sandwich to a group of discouraged fruit flies.

Friday was the morning after grocery day, which means I try for Brownie points for Mother of the Year.

I packed a virtual smorgasbord of goodies: potato chips, individually wrapped cheeses, three kinds of bread, small chilled fruit cups, a hot thermos and several candy bars.

I suspect this opulence is going to bring all kinds of mail down upon me warning that the kid's gums will bleed and he'll be nutritionally starved. But the truth is, he's in pretty good health and hasn't had a case of beriberi since his last voyage at sea.

I don't fuss anymore and why should I? Do you know what it does for a mother to see her homemade cookies go for a box of cough drops? Can you imagine how it feels when you curl a stack of carrots, stick toothpicks in them and submerge them in ice water for crispness only to have them traded for a Pete Rose baseball card?

It was no surprise when my son said this morning, "Don't bother to send a lunch with me today."

"Don't tell me. You're trading your socks for a piece of bubble gum and a holy picture. Right?"

"Nope. I saw a kid last week who didn't bring any lunch and everyone in the class gave him something. He got eight apples, five bags of corn chips, three candy bars, a bag of peanuts, a fingernail clip, a hard boiled egg and a pair of broken sun glasses. That was only on the school bus. I don't know what he ratched up once he got to the cafeteria."

Eyelashes Win Spacegal

MOSCOW (UPI) — The world's only spacewoman today added to her trophies: one pair of American false eyelashes.

"I am a woman first, a cosmonaut second," said Valentina Tereshkova, accepting the eyelashes from Mrs. Armigene Johnson, a clothing manufacturer from Islip, N.Y.

Miss Tereshkova was hostess Monday to 34 members of a touring delegation of the American Women for International Understanding now in Moscow on their unofficial woman-to-woman tour of East Europe.

Miss Tereshkova, who in private life is the wife of Soviet cosmonaut Andrian Nikolayev, is chairman of the Soviet Women's Committee, the mass organization of women in Russia.

She also appeared delighted with a set of American Indian silver work ornaments, present by the top ranking woman in President Nixon's administration, Mrs. Patricia Reilly Hitt, assistant secretary of the health, education and welfare department.

Pope Hits Daring Fashions

CASTEL GANDOLFO, Italy (AP) — Pope Paul said Sunday nude-bikini fashions and obscene publications are provoking mankind to indecent acts.

"We see that the immorality of fashions, the provoking and pornographic illustrations of some of the press, the publicity and the representation of many shows tend purposely to stimulate low passions," he said.

"All this puts dirty fantasies and immoral and depraved thoughts in the hearts of mankind, sometimes provoking shameful crimes."

Reaction at UVic:

Computers Not Alive —They're Like Women

Computers are like women, says Peter Darling, director of the computer centre at the University of Victoria.

"When they're good they're very, very good. And when they're bad, they're horrid." But he disagreed with Toronto Roman Catholic priest Rev. Arthur Gibson, who was quoted earlier as saying computers were "conscious" and "alive" and capable of original sin.

Mr. Darling said: "People can ascribe a lot of human traits to computers, but they're very much machines."

Father Gibson suggested that giving a computer an insoluble problem could cause it to develop a neurosis, but again Darling disagreed.

"If it gets an insoluble problem, it will just keep hammering away at it, as it's been trained to do."

About computers so sophisticated that it is necessary to have another computer program them, Mr. Darling said: "Humans will be in the driver's seat, no matter what happens. Computers have been used to program other computers, but a human must set them up originally."

Father Gibson, who teaches at St. Michael's College at the University of Toronto, also suggested that, in getting to know computers, man was preparing himself for the potentially traumatic encounter with alien intelligence from space.

"That's a novel approach, I must say," commented Mr. Darling. "One of the beauties of working with machines is that you have to be rational and thorough. I suppose these are handy qualities when dealing with any alien intelligence."

A spokesman for the Victoria Council of Churches, Rev. Graham Baker, reacted with, "I can't conceive that it's anything but a leg-pull. He can't be serious."

Toronto Widower

Bride Hunt Ends After Crank Calls

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto real estate agent has given up an attempt to find a bride in his home town of Lanciano, Italy.

"I have given up my idea," said Lelio Mascioli, 27, who had written the mayor of Lanciano to ask for help in finding an Italian wife.

A widower with two children, Mascioli said Monday he has been bothered by crank telephone calls since news reports of his wife hunt. He said earlier Toronto girls are "too fancy" and "some of them just care for a good time and don't look after a house properly."

His wife Lucia, 36, died last April from kidney disease, leaving him with two children, Silvana, 3, and Marissa, 6.

Mascioli would not say whether he had received any replies from Mayor Enrico d'Accio. But the mayor recently said he had forwarded six replies to Toronto.

Aged Poet Gets Honor

PARIS (AP) — Albert Fabre, an 84-year-old former salesman, was awarded the 1969 Prix Guillaume Apollinaire for poetry. The jury chose Fabre's entry thinking it that of a young man because of its ardor of sentiment and freshness of poetic technique, a spokesman said.

Former English Alderman:

Rent Control Firm, Eviction Unknown

By NANCY BROWN

Eviction is unknown and rent controls really work in England.

"No one can be turned out of a house as long as they have paid the rent," a visitor to Victoria said Saturday. "Landlords can't raise their rents, either, unless they have the permission of the rent officer, or rent assessment committee."

John and Dorothy Clough were staying at the Vancouver Street home of their nephew and niece, Rev. and Mrs. Walter Donald.

Mr. Clough was for 30 years a councillor and alderman at Southend-on-Sea, a city of some 170,000 near London.

His wife, Dorothy is a retired magistrate, marriage counsellor and an organizer of Southend's family planning centre.

When Mr. Clough retired two years ago, he was given the freedom of the city.

"They were so pleased to see me go they would have given me almost anything," he chuckled.

Municipal politics in England is vastly different from Canada's.

"Your series of little independent enclaves here amazes me."

"We used to have separate councils at one time, but as soon as the building boundaries merged the other areas amalgamated with the South-end council. Of course there were a few fights, but it settled down nicely," said Mr. Clough.

He pointed out that inter-gation of police and fire forces makes for more efficient use of emergency resources.

There are 48 councillors in Southend, with a population about equal to that of Greater Victoria.

They are elected in groups of three to represent various small communities or in English terms — wards.

"We run on a party basis," said Mr. Clough, "and I'm not entirely sure that it's a good thing to have a majority and official opposition on the basis of party as a Labor representative — I was on the opposition which was fine as I like to needle and fight for what I think is right."

After election, the council then selects, by vote, the 16 aldermen — one for each ward, and the mayor.

The aldermen have a six-year term, and they act as returning officers in their wards in intervening municipal elections.

"However this could all be changed, as we have a royal commission sitting which will decide if we should operate from a wider base — perhaps our borough and county councils don't cover a big enough area," said Mr. Clough.

He said in general aldermen set policy and sit on the more important committees.

"The purpose of a councillor is to act as a pressure group on behalf of the people he is representing."

"He should know personally the people he represents and be prepared to fight their causes both in council and out of it," said Mr. Clough.

He was for some years a member of a three-man rent assessment committee, made up of a surveyor, lawyer and member-at-large.

All rents were set by a local rent officer, but if the amount was not agreed to by the landlord or tenant the case was taken to the committee.

"One surprising result was the amount of work done on rented houses," he said.

"We could only set rents on the basis of accommodation as it was, not on the basis of promise. Rents could be reviewed only once in three years unless there were repairs, so a lot of work was done."

He said if a landlord had a destructive or careless tenant his only recourse was to civil action for damages — the tenant could stay as long as the rent was paid.

Mrs. Clough said women magistrates are not uncommon in England.

"We sit on a bench that must have at least two lay magistrates — usually there are three, and I've sat with as many as five."

"The clerk advises on points of law, we rule on the cases guided by his knowledge of the law."

Before taking office, a magistrate has to promise to retire within a certain number of years, or if he moves from the area.

"The most interesting part was juvenile court," said Mrs. Clough, "but I can't say I enjoyed the work — it could be quite depressing."

Out of her work as a magistrate came her interest in marriage guidance, and her training as a counsellor. "We're going into the schools now to act as counsellors there. We don't use teachers in these roles."

Southend's family planning clinic was started by Mrs. Clough 22 years ago. "I'm surprised you don't find them in every Canadian city," she said.

"We help women who have difficulty having families, and those with too many children. Sometimes the health nurse will bring in someone who has a large family and has difficulty finding someone to look after her children."

Most amazing thing about Victoria to the alderman from Southend?

"It's the lack of litter anywhere you go, and the lack of council housing."

A Lovelier You: Firm Answer

By MARY SUE MILLER

A girl writes: Under my doctor's care I have lost 50 pounds. I feel wonderful and look years younger. My only complaint is my bosomline. Lift and firmness were lost in the reducing process. Advice, please.

The answer: Uplift and firm tone can be re-established with exercises designed for the purpose. Improvement takes time and faithful work.

But it's worth the effort, particularly in this season of revealing necklines and peek-a-boo materials. These routines do a good job:

● Stand erect, arms out to sides at shoulder level, with palms up. Now imagine that you hold a 10-pound object in either hand. (Under no circumstances hold anything, not even a feather.)

Next, slowly lift arms about three inches, resisting the imagined weight. You do it correctly when you feel a strong pull through the arms, the underbreast muscles and the mid-back. Relax and repeat from five to ten times.

● Perform the above exercise, lying back down on the floor, with knees bent so that your heels can "dig" into the floor. Ten to 15 times.

As you work out, you will come to realize that the routine operates on a sort of remote control principle. And it must be so, for the bosom depends on the support of the pectoral muscles—a remote control arrangement.

Pension Review

Mrs. Lucy Johnson of Nelson, who last week petitioned Premier Bennett on the steps of the Legislature for a women's compensation pension, has won a review of her case.

Women's Compensation Board consultant Gerald Levey told Mrs. Johnson in Vancouver Monday the board has agreed to refer her late husband's file to a panel of doctors to decide whether silicosis contributed to his death.

The earlier decision was that Mrs. Johnson was not entitled to a pension because her husband Carl had died of a heart attack.

He had received a pension from 1964 for disability suffered because of work done in mines, but his death in 1967 left Mrs. Johnson without an income. He had stopped work in 1942, suffering from silicosis.

Plea Fails, Man Gets Jail Term

"Please don't send me to jail. Give me a heavy fine and a long suspension of my licence, but don't send me to jail."

But Gordon A. Bolley, 34, of 3 Woodville Place pleaded in vain.

He was found guilty Monday in Victoria Provincial Court on a charge of impaired driving and sentenced to three months in jail.

Judge William Ostler told him there was nothing he could do.

MINIMUM SENTENCE

"I am bound by the law like any other citizen, and that law says that I must give you a minimum sentence."

Bolley, who had two previous impaired driving convictions, said he had already made arrangements for a part-time job which would enable him to pay the fine.

"I must pay for my mistake, and I realize that, but I have recently bought a house, and my wife, who is under doctor's care, won't be able to keep up the payments if I'm sent to jail," he said.

"Isn't there anything you can do?" he asked.

The judge replied that he wouldn't humiliate the accused by letting him beg for mercy if there was anything that he could do.

"I am moved by your passionate plea, and it's extremely painful for me to sentence you, but the best I can do is give you the minimum sentence of three months," Judge Ostler said.

Arthur C. Chartrand, 20, of no fixed address, was given a suspended sentence after he pleaded guilty earlier to a charge of shoplifting.

Court was told last week that Chartrand attempted to steal a pair of shoes valued at $4.97 from a downtown department store.

At the time, the accused was remanded in custody for sentence and pre-sentence report.

"You have spent some days in jail, and you will hopefully be deterred from such activities in the future," Judge Ostler told him.

"The incidence of shoplifting has become so great that more severe measures must be taken."

In addition to the suspended sentence, Chartrand was placed on a six-month good-behavior bond.

Frank Taylor, 19, of no fixed address, who was to have been sentenced Monday after he pleaded guilty last week to a charge of theft over $50, was remanded again until Sept. 19.

Court was told that the pre-sentence report had not been completed.

Taylor is charged with having stolen two lawnmowers from John C. Smith of 2229 Alding Place.

A 34-year-old man who stole a case of hot chocolate powder and two cans of orange juice from a downtown coffee shop, was fined $100 after he pleaded guilty to a charge of theft under $50.

Court was told that Douglas T. Crabbe of no fixed address visited a friend who worked at the restaurant. While the friend was busy talking to a customer, the accused took the chocolate powder and the orange juice and placed them outside the back door.

He later walked around the building, took possession of the merchandise and started walking away, court was told.

Crabbe was stopped by a policeman on routine patrol.

Ronald C. Hungle, 24, of 1110 Beach Drive, was fined $300 after he pleaded guilty to a charge of driving while his licence was suspended.

Court was told the accused was stopped by police Saturday night and was given a roadside suspension because the officers believed he was "a borderline impaired case."

Hungle didn't pay attention to the police officers. He told them they couldn't do such a thing and drove off.

"When he drove away, he said 'good-night fellows,'" court was told.

Home Grants Touted

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell says in a new booklet on housing that the government of British Columbia has done more to encourage home ownership than any government in North America.

Outlined in the booklet, in question-and-answer form, are the types of home ownership assistance available in B.C.

Mr. Campbell says the B.C. government initiated programs like the annual provincial home-owner grant, grants to persons buying their first home and grants on second mortgage loans to those buying new a home.

First Citizens Fund Headed by Campbell

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell has been appointed chairman of the First Citizens Fund. He succeeds Provincial Secretary Wesley Black who remains on the committee.

The change was disclosed in a cabinet order released Monday. Indians come under the department of the provincial secretary while they remain primarily a federal responsibility.

Mr. Campbell, however, has recently been trying to interest Indian bands in voluntarily establishing municipalities on their reserve lands. The move would first require a change in the federal Indian act and negotiations are under way to transfer more jurisdiction in this area to the provinces.

The $25,000,000 First Citizens Fund, established by the Legislature last spring, is expected to

When Skin Sags on Face and Neck

Even skin that sags and is no longer smooth, could be made firm and much younger looking. That "older look" usually appears first around the throat, but is comparatively easy to treat by very simple means that require no skill at all.

Get 2nd Debut with CEF 600 or CEF 1200 in double strength from your drug or dept. store and apply it gently to your throat and face each night before retiring. After just a few days, you will notice your skin becoming firmer again and smoother. That is because the 2nd Debut has revitalized your skin with a new supply of water from the surface clear into the inner skin.

Interior Whitefish, Kokanee

Massive Die-Offs Connected

A provincial Fish and Wildlife Branch official Sunday likened a mysterious mass death of whitefish in the West Arm of Kootenay Lake to the equally mysterious death of thousands of land-locked salmon in early summer.

Thousands of kokanee salmon were found washed up on the shores at the north end of Okanagan Lake at the end of May. They were believed to have died from a type of virus disease.

"The way the fish were found certainly makes it look as though it could be the same type of thing we had in Okanagan Lake," Mr. Vernon said.

He said that in the case of the Okanagan fish die-off, samples weren't in good enough condition by the time they reached the research laboratory in Nanaimo for a proper examination to be made.

"This time we just happened to have some of our research men right there on the spot at Nelson and so we got good samples straight away."

Mr. Vernon said the samples were sent Friday to the laboratory in Nanaimo and a report was expected within the week.

The Balfour-Proctor area is a popular tourist attraction in West Kootenay.

GOOD EATING

Mr. Vernon said the whitefish was "a very good sport fish and good to eat."

To date the dead fish have been concentrated on the West Arm of Kootenay Lake but have spread to within six to eight miles of Nelson.

Dying fish have had blood coming from the fins, tail and gills. Large quantities of a sticky substance were also evident around the gills.

Dr. R. T. Pagan, a Nelson health official with the Selkirk Health Unit, said he didn't think a health hazard will develop unless the flies become bad.

NDP Out—McGeer

FOR 10 DAYS

Ed Vernon, chief of fisheries management at the fish and wildlife branch, said he believed the huge fish die-off which has been in progress for 10 days and has left the Kootenay Lake in the Balfour — Proctor area rimmed with dead whitefish, was also caused by some kind of virus disease.

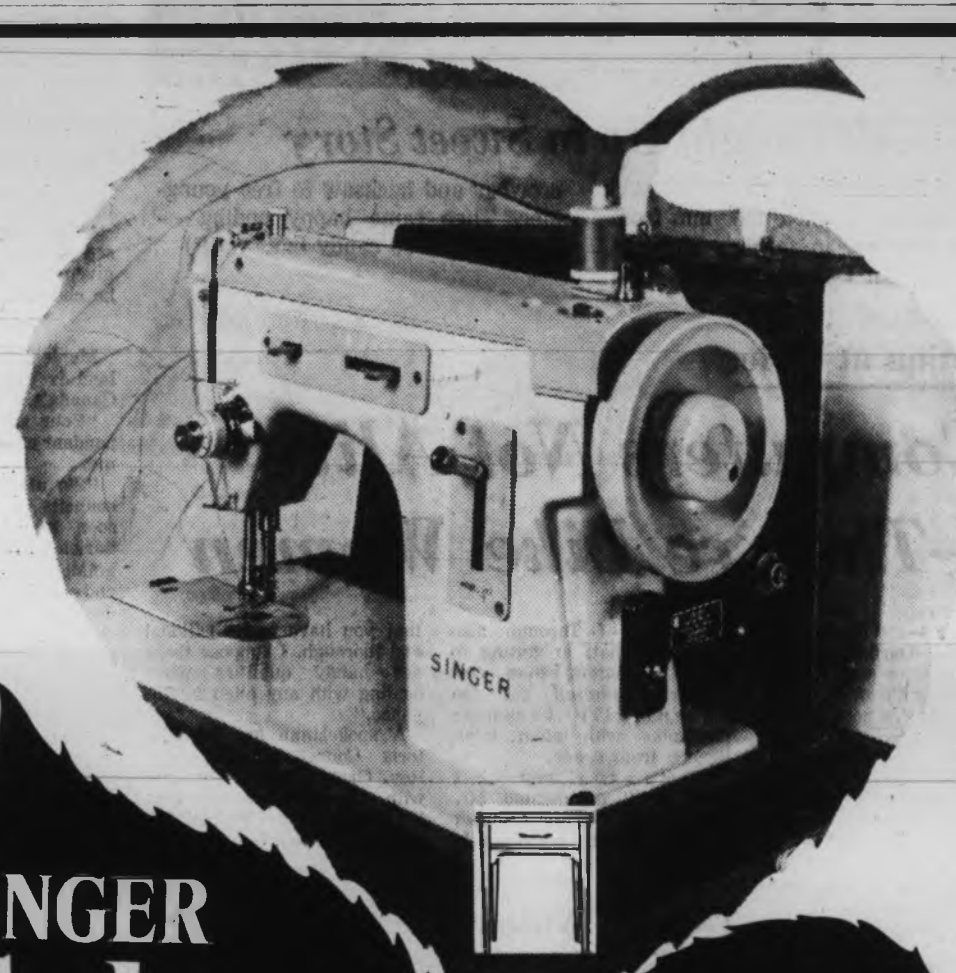

CHILLIWACK (CP) — The New Democratic Party will never form a government in British Columbia, Liberal leader Pat McGeer said Sunday.

Dr. McGeer told a public meeting the Aug. 27 provincial election showed "an overwhelming rejection" of socialism.

And those who supported the NDP believing in reform but not in the necessity of socialism have helped to defeat reform, he said.

"By asking the price of socialism, the NDP is surely doing the cause of moderate reform inestimable harm," said Dr. McGeer, one of five Liberals elected to the 55-member Legislature.

Flood Damage At $100,000

GREENWOOD (CP) — Mayor Allan Morrison said a flood of 9,000,000 gallons of water from a mine tailing pond last week caused about $100,000 damage to this Kootenay city of 1,000 persons. About 60 buildings were affected by water seepage and a six-block-long ditch was dug down the main street to carry the water away.

Nessie Odds Down as Big Hunt Starts

INVERNESS, Scotland (AP) — So many British gamblers placed bets Monday that the Loch Ness monster really exists that Ladbroke's, one of Britain's top bookmaking firms, shortened the odds on its being found to 6 to 1 from 10 to 1. Money began pouring in during the weekend as preparations got under way at the loch for the largest-ever search for the monster. "We already stand to lose $50,000 if a monster is found and could lay ourselves open to a liability of a million dollars or more if we didn't shorten the odds," a Ladbroke's official said. Two teams of British scientists tested sonar equipment in the 20-mile-long loch in a bid to track down the monster. Loch means lake. Standing by was a miniature submarine piloted by a 28-year-old American, Dan Taylor. The scientists carried out tests Monday and plan to push the two-week search into full swing today. They will bombard the depths of the murky loch with electronic noises which they hope will drive the monster into an area where they can register its presence on sonar and radar equipment. The scientists are headed by technicians from Britain's Plessey Electronics Co. and experts from Birmingham University. More than 3,000 sightings of the monster have been reported since 1933. Ladbroke's conditions for the bet are that "a creature not less than 30 feet in length, previously unknown in Great Britain, must be positively identified as such before Jan. 1, 1970." Scientists were enticed by a report that two British businessmen had found a monster-sized bone—four feet two inches long—on the edge of the loch. The businessmen, who were keeping their names and where the bone was hidden a secret, said they would reveal their find to the Loch Ness Phenomena Investigation Bureau.

Drug War Launched

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — Attorney-General John Mitchell disclosed Monday the Nixon administration's plans to curtail drug abuses, including a ban on the manufacture of certain drugs and new authority to arrest suspected offenders.

Mitchell, in testimony before Congress, asked for legislation prohibiting the manufacturing of such drugs as heroin, marijuana and LSD, except for legitimate research purposes.

He told members of the Senate subcommittee on juvenile delinquency and the judiciary committee that such drugs "have no recognized medical use in this country."

President Nixon on July 14 sent a message to Congress calling for a war against drug abuse.

The attorney-general asked Congress to approve laws which would permit federal narcotics bureau agents to enter places where drugs are illegally sold or stored without knocking, but only possessing a judge's advance authority.

A "no-knock" law is needed, he said, because by the time an agent goes through the required process of knocking and announcing his authority and purpose violators are able to destroy their contraband.

Public Employees:

Janitors Need University Say

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Union of Public Employees says janitors and other non-academic employees of the University of Toronto should have a voice in running the university, have access to the faculty club and free tuition for their children.

In a brief to the university's commission on university government, CUPE also asks the institution to end its "anti-union activities and declare publicly that it favors its staff joining unions.

Of the university's staff of 4,000, only 840 belong to unions. CUPE represents 350 library assistants, with other unions representing 490 building-maintenance, cleaning and dietary staff, operating engineers, police, carpenters, electricians, plumbers, locksmiths, machinists and sheet-metal workers.

Two Quads In Danger

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two of the quadruplets born Saturday to Mrs. James Larmer, 25, were reported in poor condition Monday. Doctors said the boy and one of the three girls might survive if they could get through the next 24 to 48 hours, and added the other girls have better chances.

Esquimalt 'Personnel Matters'

Secret Council Sitting Longest

Esquimalt council met for 23 minutes Monday night before going into secret session for a 1½-hour discussion on what Mayor Ray Bryant called "personal matters."

Council approved a report on the Panhandle area sewer infestation.

Clerk Jack Allan reported only one objection from the 55 property owners concerned and was instructed to draw up the necessary bylaws for the work for presentation at the next council meeting.

Council decided to hold a public hearing 15 minutes before the next council meeting into the proposed rezoning of property on Shearwater Street for two-family dwellings.

A request by Victoria architect Peter Cotton for permission to build suites below the 700 square-foot minimum space requirement was turned down. Mr. Cotton proposed to convert an old house at 646 Admirals to rent as suites.

Mayor Bryant reported on the intermunicipal committee meeting, and it was decided to appoint recreation director Harold Moist as delegate to a B.C. Festival of Sports committee.

Council also approved a systems analysis and data processing study for the region to be made by the municipal affairs department.

Ald. Walter Locke and Ald. William Bell were appointed to the court of revision for the 1969 voters list. Mayor Bryant will be chairman.

A bylaw was adopted to rezone parts of Selkirk Avenue for multiple dwellings.

Inquest Probes Fatality

A coroner's jury found Monday that a driver entered an intersection against a red light just before an accident that led to Greater Victoria's 13th traffic fatality this year.

"We find that Mr. Robert Justice did in fact enter the intersection on a red light," the jury foreman said.

A pickup truck driven by the 17-year-old youth, of 7365 Seabrook, collided with a car in which Mrs. Florence Rutley, 69, of 406-905 Burdett, was a passenger at Bay and Rose Sept. 4. Mrs. Rutley died later in hospital. The youth testified under the Canada and B.C. evidence acts.

Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids...and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved... actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most important—this improvement was maintained in many months. Furthermore, these tests and observations were made on patients with a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. All this was accomplished with a healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a stated cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

B.C. Order:

Arbitration For Police

Peterson

By DON COLLINS

Saanich and Oak Bay police lost the right Monday to call a strike in their present wage dispute.

They will be forced, as had been expected, to abide by a binding decision of the B.C. Mediation Commission.

For the first time since it began official operation last December, the commission will exercise its controversial power of compulsory arbitration.

CABINET MEETING

The decision to hand the case to the commission on this basis was made at a cabinet meeting on the advice of Labor Minister Leslie Peterson, after he had met in his office for an hour and 45 minutes with representatives of the two police bodies.

Had this move not been made, the police had planned to serve 72-hour strike notice on both municipalities at 9 a.m. today.

The mediation commission has heard other cases, but only when the parties voluntarily requested it.

FORCED HAND

This time, the police forced the government's hand by voting last Friday in favor of a strike, and setting a deadline.

Mr. Peterson, who is also attorney-general, had indicated earlier the police constituted an essential service that could not be allowed to break down.

Police had forecast Monday's outcome well in advance and had described it as the only avenue open to them. When they held their strike vote Friday, they agreed not to serve notice until they conferred Monday with Mr. Peterson.

SECTION 18

The power the commission will use in dealing with the case comes through involving Section 18 of the Mediation Act, better known as Bill 33.

After meeting police representatives, Mr. Peterson said he felt he had no alternative but to recommend use of compulsory arbitration by the commission. He said police had brought up the question of establishing a police act, but that this had not been discussed in depth.

'MINISTER RELUCTANT'

Teamster west coast leader Ed Lawson, representing the police, said Mr. Peterson did not seem to favor the idea of a police act. "The minister was reluctant to take the policemen from under the sphere of the mediation commission."

He said Bill 33 gave police the right to call a strike, "without the right to exercise it."

Police in Victoria, Oak Bay and Saanich had sought through their various police commissions to win wage parity with police in six communities on the Lower Mainland.

SALARY DIFFERENCE

Until a recent 17.5 per cent increase, a first-class constable on the mainland had been earning $644 a month, compared to $620 for his counterpart in Greater Victoria.

Police here say it would take a 21.5 per cent hike to bring about parity. Victoria police went before the mediation commission on a voluntary basis and were awarded a 14.56 per cent increase, dubbed "punitive and unfair" by Mr. Lawson, who had represented them.

OFFER REDUCED

Oak Bay police were offered 17 per cent by their police commission, but the offer was reduced to match the Victoria award. Saanich police say their offer fell short of the 14.56 per cent set for Victoria.

Mr. Lawson said Mr. Peterson was told Monday an application would be made to have the mediation commission reconsider the Victoria police award. He said Mr. Peterson appeared willing to hear such an application.

Anti-Gambling Crusader Bets Wrong Longshot

RENTON, Wash. (UPI) — Crusading attorney Alva Long went to Longacres racetrack Sunday bent on losing $300 and suing the state for running an illegal gambling establishment. Instead his longshot came home in front and Long won $1,845.

The attorney from Auburn, Wash., was going to lose $300 in crisp $100 bills, then sue the state under an 1881 statute. The $300 sum was stipulated in the old law as a requirement to bring the matter to the state supreme court.

In the first race, Long plunked down his money for three $100 tickets to win on Sun O'Morn, who had managed to lose all three of his starts, including a 16-length whipping in his last race. But the horse, fourth choice of the bettors, grabbed the lead in the stretch and came home a winner, paying $12.30 for every $2.

The law, passed by a territorial legislature before Washington became a state, permits anyone who loses money gambling to sue the person he lost money to for the amount lost.

Long said he will try again, and emphasized he does not want to end all gambling in the state. Instead, he hopes to do away with double standards that ban gambling on pinball machines or in card-rooms while allowing parimutuel gambling at the track.

Major U.S. Withdrawals Predicted from Vietnam

● Flyers' wives appeal to Hanoi. Page 3.

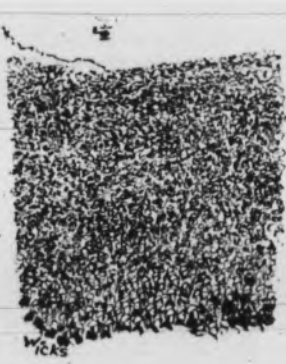

SAIGON (AP) — Another 40,500 United States troops will be withdrawn from South Vietnam by the end of November and from 150,000 to 200,000 will be out of the country by the end of 1970, Vice-President Nguyen Cao Ky said Monday night.

The Viet Cong radio promptly repeated demands that all U.S. troops get out of the country. It declared complete withdrawal "is the only way to restore the honor of the United States and to avoid the meaningless death of tens of thousands of young Americans."

SPECIFIC FIGURES

Ky made his statement while visiting a Saigon art exhibit after an emergency meeting of the South Vietnamese National Security Council.

In Washington, White House press secretary Ronald Ziegler told reporters President Nixon has decided definitely on another withdrawal of U.S. troops from Vietnam. He said the White House would announce specific figures this morning.

"Nixon's withdrawing more troops... pass it on!"

Shortly before Ky issued his statement, he met with President Nguyen Van Thieu and other top Vietnamese officials to discuss a second U.S. troop withdrawal. The meeting followed the return to Saigon of Gen. Creighton Abrams, U.S. commander in Vietnam, from a Washington conference with Nixon.

Ky's statement came at a time when the Nixon administration was being pressed to take new peace initiatives following the death of North Vietnamese President Ho Chi Minh.

REGULAR UNIT

The U.S. command reported Monday that for the first time in the war a regular North Vietnamese army unit—the 19th Regiment—had attacked in the Mekong Delta, south of Saigon.

The regiment, numbering up to 2,000 men, was reported to have moved into the delta last month after the withdrawal of two brigades of the 9th Division to the U.S.

Seven hours of fighting left 83 Communist troops dead. Four government trainees were killed and 19 wounded.

There were no reports of major action elsewhere.

Russia Breaks Wheat Pact

Canada May Lose Millions

Calculated Los Angeles Times Service

MOSCOW — The Soviet Union has defaulted on a major three-year wheat agreement with Canada resulting in possible Canadian losses of several hundred million dollars.

It is understood on the best authority that the Soviet failure to fulfil contractual obligations could cost Canada as much as $200,000,000 to $300,000,000 in wheat sales.

These loss estimates represent outstanding Soviet pledges to purchase Canadian wheat under an agreement signed in June, 1966.

Under that accord the Russians agreed to buy 9,000,000 metric tons during a three-year period. The total estimated cost to the Soviet Union was between $500,000,000 and $700,000,000.

The contract's termination date fell July 31, 1969.

Canada has sold and delivered only about 5,200,000 tons thus far. The unsettled Soviet deficit remains at approximately 3,800,000 tons, or 42 per cent of what the Russians originally promised to buy.

Moreover, Canadian hopes of rectifying what is a clear Soviet default are anything but encouraging.

In spite of the joint agreement, Canadian wheat sales to the Soviet Union have tapered off dramatically since 1967.

The Russians bought 157,200,000 bushels of wheat that year. In 1968 the figure dropped to 40,000,000 bushels. During December of last year Canada was able to conclude only a couple of small future sales covering limited wheat shipments to Cuba.

It was in that month that Canadian and Soviet officials held their last direct meeting. A long-distance but inconclusive exchange took place early this summer.

As the question now stands, the two sides have agreed only to meet later in the year. The best Eastern judgment here is that at that time the Soviet Union may consent to nothing more than nominal wheat purchases and a proviso to continue periodic talks.

For the public record neither nation is conceding default, a potential source of serious controversy between Moscow and Ottawa. Instead, the troubles are couched in a fancy diplomatic language about continuing talks and the recognition by both sides of existing financial obligations.

The point about the initial contract, however, is that it does not contain a stretch-out clause.

Informed sources offered the following two-fold explanation of the Soviet failure to live up to the agreement, a

SACHS HARBOR, N.W.T. (CP) — The voyage of the Ss. Manhattan through the Northwest Passage has left its sponsors more confident than ever that Arctic waters can be used 12 months a year for commercial purposes.

Frank Radar Critic Punished?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. government was accused Monday of punishing an air traffic controller who warned radar coverage was weak in an area where a jetliner collided with a small plane last week, killing 83 persons.

The National Association of Government Employees, which claims to represent about 8,500 of the 14,000 U.S. controllers, said the Federal Aviation Administration relieved James Knecht of his duties controlling traffic at Weir-Cook Municipal Airport in Indianapolis.

The association also said Knecht was held "incommunicado" over the weekend by FAA officials. It said he was subjected to "intense grilling" while being denied the right to counsel.

Kenneth Lyons, association president, said, "There is no question but that the FAA is punishing this man for squealing on the system."

An FAA spokesman confirmed Knecht was relieved of his duties and assigned to a new job where radar is not involved. He said the FAA Supervisor at Indianapolis felt that, if Knecht did not have "confidence" in the radar, he should not be assigned to use it.

Knecht has said he warned the FAA July 28 small planes do not appear in the area of radar coverage where an Allegheny Airlines jetliner collided with a private plane Sept. 9.

Lyons said Knecht "has been warning the agency for more than two years that radar coverage at Weir-Cook was inadequate. Now that his and the other controllers' worse fears have been realized, the FAA bureaucracy is doing its damndest to squelch any revelation of its negligence."

He said the association had sent a telegram to FAA administrator John Shaffer demanding Knecht be fully restored to his old job within 48 hours or he would seek court action and a Congressional investigation.

Men on Mars in 1980s Part of Unhurried Plan

New Cosmos Launch In Space Bomb Path

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon set his sights Monday on a United States landing on Mars in the 1980s.

Nixon accepted a report from a special task force on space calling for a landing on Mars but rejecting any crash program to do so that would ignore budgetary considerations.

The report also rejected any phasing out of manned space flights.

The report was submitted by Vice-President Spiro Agnew and other members of the task force. Nixon had assigned the group the task of making proposals for the administration's space program.

White House press secretary Ronald Ziegler said its recommendations on it call for "a balanced program of both manned and unmanned activity with a man landing on Mars as an integral part."

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union Monday launched an unmanned satellite into a path used for testing its unique "space bomb."

Tass said Cosmos 298 was sent up on an orbit with a high point of 131 miles and a low point of 87 miles at an angle to the equator of 50 degrees. Western military space experts said this is the path used for testing the Soviet fractional orbital bombardment system in 1967 and 1968.

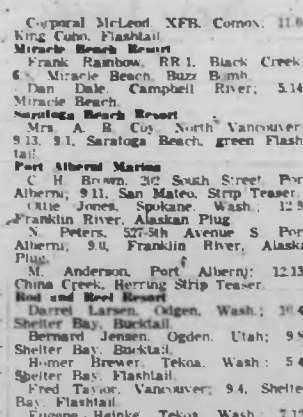

Standard Cosmos space research vehicles follow one of several well-known orbits and prototype manned space craft are tested in other flight paths. The orbit of Cosmos 298 has been used only for testing the "space bomb."

The "fractional orbit" means the weapon is designed to complete less than a full orbit around earth. It is then slowed by retrorockets and drops its warhead or warheads on a target.

Giant Bubble Protects Growing Boat

Photostory
By KLAUS MUENTER

CHEMAINUS—The giant plastic bubble rising from the ground near the old Chemainus River bridge is neither a big balloon in the making nor a defence installation.

Ennals

Cowichan

Recount Waived By Ennals

DUNCAN—Dr. Charles Ennals, who contested Cowichan Malahat constituency for the Social Credit party in the August provincial election, has decided not to seek a judicial recount.

Former provincial NDP leader Robert Strachan was re-elected to the riding and after the absentee votes were counted recently, he gained a lead of 304 votes over Dr. Ennals.

'NOT JUSTIFIED'

On Monday, Dr. Ennals said: "In view of the fact that there are some 300 votes for the winning candidate, and taking into consideration that there are only 180-odd rejected ballots, it would not seem justified to put people to the time and expense of a judicial recount."

"I would like to thank all voters in this constituency who took the trouble to exercise their democratic prerogative and who came and voted."

TURNOUT PRAISED

Dr. Ennals continued: "The 73 per cent turnout of voters in the Cowichan-Malahat constituency I think is commendable considering the provincial turnout of 68 per cent."

"In a future general election, or should there be a by-election in the interim, I would look forward again to seeking the Social Credit nomination in this area."

FINAL TOTALS

Final figures for the riding were: Mr. Strachan, 7,411; Dr. Ennals, 7,107; Liberal Jim Rigby, 916; Independent Kenneth Hansen, 76.

Returning officer Cyril Eldred said, after the absentee-vote count, that out of the 21,073 eligible voters in the constituency, 15,094 or 73.7 per cent, voted.

It's a workshop in which Sven Hedman and his wife are building a 30-foot sloop.

Mr. Hedman bought the hull and literally blew the plastic bubble over it.

The slight air pressure generated by a small fan keeps the plastic up, and on hot days, not even the fan is needed. The sun expands the air inside the bubble enough to provide support pressure.

Mr. Hedman said the idea was not original with him, but came from a magazine he read.

In winter time, an oil stove provides both heat and pressure for the bubble.

Highwinds provide problems for the formless structure, and so does sunlight, which will eventually dissolve the plastic film.

But before that happens, Mr. and Mrs. Hedman expect to have the sloop finished.

The Hedmans and their two children Carina, 15 and Christer, 13, left their farm in Oestergotland, Sweden, to come to Canada in 1967.

Coming to Vernon first, he taught himself to weld and began to manufacture on a small scale simple and graceful iron creations resembling the clean, beautiful lines of Swedish artists.

Two years after arriving at Vernon the family pulled up stakes and with a trailer travelled through the Peace River country.

At Lacombe, Alta., they found a run-down farm.

A rusty barbed wire, used as a clothesline, seemed to be the only convenience since there was no running water, no plumbing and no heat in the house.

The Hedmans started from scratch. Mr. Hedman ferreted out old machinery which he painfully rebuilt and within a few years the farm prospered to the envy of some of the neighbors.

Mr. Hedman recalled, "If you speak of western hospitality don't include Alberta. It's in British Columbia that you find that type of hospitality."

From zero, the livestock on the 400-acre Hedman farm eventually grew to include 30 Hereford range cattle, 50 Hereford feeders, 200 pigs plus 30 breeding sows.

For 10 years the family lived on the farm but then decided to venture further west after they had fallen in love with Vancouver Island on a previous visit.

They rented out their farm and came to Chemainus.

Nanaimo Claim

Official 'In Dark' Over SPCA Work

NANAIMO—Lorne McLaughlin, Nanaimo SPCA vice-chairman, claimed Monday that he was being kept from having any information about branch activities and finances.

In an interview, he said: "I've been told flat-out that I'll never see the records... that I'm a trouble-maker and a witch-hunter."

"On several contentious issues that have been brought up so far, Mrs. Margaret Foley, president, has said the items where in the hands of the parent body, the British Columbia SPCA."

"This, along with claimed 'constitutional amendments' can effectively hamstring any inquiries. The way things are set up, the president has dictatorial powers," Mr. McLaughlin said.

MARCH REQUEST

He said that when he first took office in March, he was asked to sign an oath-of-secrecy agreement.

"I just wouldn't take any part of it," he said.

Referring to the March meeting, he said there was more than $300 hidden in the miscellaneous heading. When questioned, the executive admitted that the money was used to pay a lawyer during a fight between the branch and SPCA Inspector Reg Robertson.

BOARD HEARING

Mr. McLaughlin said the inspector was suspended without a hearing on the authority of shelter manager, Mrs. Jean McGrath. After a Labor Relations Board hearing, there was a ruling that Mr. Robertson had to be reinstated.

The ruling was on April 22 but re-instatement took place May 22. The ruling also decreed that more than $2,000 in back wages had to be paid but they weren't paid until July 24.

It was that date that Mr. Robertson was again suspended. For one month Mr. Robertson's Plans have been made to hold a rummage sale in the Elks' Hall at 10 a.m. Sept. 26.

Lake Cowichan Lodge will bring the travelling gavel to Campbell River Oct. 9.

"I'd be tickled to death to be able to tell the public what's happening to their finances, but I can't because I can't get any information despite being vice-president," he continued.

He said he tried to call a special meeting of the general membership but found out that according to the bylaws, only the specific item for which the special meeting was called would be discussed.

"Anytime one's been called by anyone, except the president, nothing's happened. It has come up against all kinds of hitches. The general membership is not being informed either to them or the public. They have a right to know. You just can't take grants or $2 memberships and say, 'from now on leave everything up to the executive.'"

Mr. McLaughlin said he had tried every means to get information but public complaint to news media seemed to be his last resort.

Two Die in Crash Near Port Alberni

PORT ALBERNI—Two Port Alberni men died when their car was involved in a collision late Saturday afternoon on Highway 4, about eight miles east of the city.

They were Gregory Albert Hamilton, 23, of 634 Gertrude Street and Robert Erns Walsh, 24, of 14th Avenue, north. A third passenger in the car, driven by Mr. Hamilton, was injured, said police.

He was Doug Schmitz, of 801 Hollywood, who was treated at West Coast General Hospital and then discharged.

The accident also involved a truck, driven by Myron Bradley of Union Gap, Wash.

The incident occurred at a point near the top of the passing lane on The Hump.

An inquest date has not yet been set.

Aldermen Study Parking Issues

By ARNOLD OLSON

NANAIMO—Nanaimo city council discussed four phases of parking problems Monday night.

The first came when Hermann Pahl of 660 Terminal spoke on behalf of 24 people who signed a petition asking for special consideration for people who may have problems if Terminal Avenue becomes a four-lane highway.

He said that at present he must use all the existing lanes when turning into his driveway but if four lanes were built, he would have to "lane-hop."

BREAKING LAW

Mr. Pahl said he would either have to back into, or out of, his driveway, and under the Highways Act he would be breaking the law.

"We're not paying 25 cents taxes, we are paying up to $600," he said.

In his case, his wife, daughter and himself all worked different shifts and had different cars, said Mr. Pahl.

SAFE WAY

The only way that would be safe would be to install U-shaped driveway for each of the houses affected, he said. It was estimated that would cost up to $12,000.

Mr. Pahl said he was also worried about the proposed four-lane highway reducing property values.

"Who would want to buy it? Who can get in or out? I know what has to come—the bypass of Nanaimo."

FURTHER STUDY

The issue was referred to council in committee for further discussion.

Mayor Frank Ney commented that Mr. Pahl's idea of U-shaped driveways might be the answer and might save the government a greater amount of money in preparing either backlanes or a bypass route.

Another parking problem affected Kennedy Street residents and a rest home.

SIGNS URGED

Mrs. Joan Iwaskow, operator of the rest home, suggested that no-parking signs be placed in the 300 block because Malaspina college students were taking up all available space.

(College president Dr. Carlton Ognard has said: that the college enrolment last week was 650 but there had been more than 700 applications to be processed and the figure could rise.)

Ald. Ted Jenkinson said he had surveyed the problem. "I found that the parking lot was half empty but the streets were jammed. I think it is up to the college to educate the students to use their own parking lot."

BUS SERVICE

The matter was referred to the police, parking and traffic committee for report.

Closing the discussion, Ald. John Hancock said: "We are hoping to have an excellent bus service there."

He hoped the regional district bus purchase bylaw on Sept. 24 would be accepted so that project transit improvements throughout the area could be implemented.

BOULEVARD LAW

Ald. Jenkinson asked when the city was to begin enforcing the boulevard crossing bylaw.

Ald. Hancock, who introduced the subject of bylaw enforcement two weeks ago, reported that there were several anomalies to be overcome before enforcement could be fairly instituted.

He said that in the meantime some boulevards were being ruined.

Ald. Gordon McKay said: "I think this is a go-slow program and it will sort itself out."

LITTLE ROOM

There were people with insufficient room to park and that to enforce the bylaw would result in council receiving a number of petitions from irate citizens.

The Wallace Street branch of the Royal Canadian Legion asked for parking meters on both sides of Wallace Street between Fitzwilliam and Franklyn Streets.

The request was referred to the police, parking and traffic committee for action.

Ald. Hancock said the request would be included in a report being prepared about that generally congested area.

A report from Ald. Jenkinson, chairman of the properties, fire and beautification committee, recommended landscaping at the rear of Harbor Park. The city's share would be $965.

After a brief discussion, Ald. Jenkinson said he would like to see a larger project including a rockery, or flower bed, along the face of the block.

"I think this would really be a beautification project," he said. He added that he would be willing to institute a program any time funds were available. Aldermen agreed to go ahead with the $965 landscaping proposal which will be joined by Marathon Realty, a subsidiary of CPR.

City treasurer-collector R. G. Rowledge reported that the initiative lane-paving program costs for completed work totalled $38,135.34. Property owners were charged 15 cents per taxable front foot for 10 years. City costs, other than as an owner, were $10,634.62.

Pool Campaign Starts At Duncan

DUNCAN—A $100,000 fund drive, toward a covered swimming pool, was launched Monday evening at Duncan city hall.

A joint proclamation, read by commission chairman Gordon Cameron, was issued by Duncan and North Cowichan. Mayor Jim Quaipe represented the city and Ald. John Cannon, the municipality.

Both Mayor Quaipe and Ald. Cannon spoke strongly in support of the drive.

Ald. Cannon asked the people who get behind the project to make it a community-wide effort.

There was a large crowd to hear the proclamation being read and despite the cool weather, members of the committee appeared in striped bathing pants to support the drive for the pool.

The fund drive has been organized by the Cowichan Operation Recreation Society headed by Pat Moore.

Mr. Moore stressed that the success of the fund-raising project would depend on community involvement. The drive will end Dec. 1. Earlier the city and North Cowichan agreed with their respective recreation commissions that the swimming pool should be the first phase of a more ambitious future recreation development.

Money derived from the sale of booster buttons will be used to pay for administration.

Mr. Moore said it was hoped a special delivery service for pamphlets and other material could be established to cut down expenses even further. All other donations would go into a trust fund.

Because all help was voluntary, administration costs could be kept to a minimum, said Mr. Moore.

Oak Bay Youngsters to Rescue

Fire Didn't Have Chance

By DON COLLINS
Out of nowhere came the kids.
Some were in their teens — the age of the bad image. Some were younger.
They came on the run, in groups and individually. And before they left they became the anonymous heroes in the fight against a 20-acre Up-lands Park fire that threatened a number of homes Saturday.
"These young people were wonderful," said Mrs. J. H. Tynan, 3000 Valdez. She was one of a handful of residents who stood guard with garden hoses as flames spread through scrub bush and grass toward homes on Valdez and Southdowne.
"They disconnected my hose in front of the house and brought it around back and connected it there for me so that it could be used to water down the property as a precaution," she said.
"Before long, others were bringing all the hoses they could get."
Oak Bay firemen said flames spread to within about 60 feet of some backyards. Some of the residents thought it was closer.
"We could hear the crackling of the flames before we could actually see them," said Mrs. Tynan. "It was too close for comfort for about an hour or so."
Mrs. G. F. Kenny, 3075 Southdowne, said a garden hose was used to protect her property. Despite the fear that the situation created, her main recollection appeared to be of youngsters offering help.

"The children were a real help," she said. "A lot of them were out there beating the flames with brooms."
Oak Bay firemen used three trucks and were on the scene for several hours. The blaze was spotted at 4:40 p.m. and grew quickly in a strong wind. The last smoldering areas were being dampened down after 8:30 p.m.

Firemen attacked the fire from three sides — Dorset, Lansdowne and Beach Drive. "Some of those youngsters dragged hoses around for us. They did a pretty good job," one fireman said.

Efforts for Two Years May Ease House Crisis

By NANCY BROWN

Efforts are being made by both government and private agencies to solve Victoria's housing crisis, and the worst problems could be over in about two years time, says Victoria assistant city manager William Hooson.

Most important developments in the housing scene, he said Saturday, are the announcement that non-profit groups need only five per cent of their building cost. With government grants available for the rest, and limited dividend legislation for private developers.

Squeeze Is On

High Density Inevitable

The housing squeeze tightens up another notch Monday, when the federal government's Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation interest rates go up to 9½ per cent.
According to Philip G. Jackson, president of Victoria Real Estate Board, the one-half-per-cent increase will add $7 a month to the cost of the mortgage on an average house or two additional years on the usual 26-year repayment period.
Announcing the increase — the second since January, when its interest rate went up to 9 per cent — CMHC said Friday it was keeping its rates in line with those of banks and trust companies, whose average rates are now 9.61 per cent.
Mr. Jackson said his estimate applied to a $20,000 mortgage and did not take into account the down payment.
He provided a graphic illustration of the extra cost to would-be homeowners. When rates were 7 per cent, only a few years ago, $138 a month would carry a $20,000 mortgage and buy a better house. Now the house $20,000 would buy would be smaller, and it will cost $171 a month to carry the mortgage — an increase of $33 a month.

When local taxes are taken into account, the monthly payment would total about $200 a month. Federal lending regulations would not consider a loan of that amount to a man earning less than $120 a month.
"How many people are earning anything like that? Not very many, I'm afraid," he said.
Average weekly wage in Victoria, according to federal statistics, is $108.71, or $468.49 a month — which is $251.51 a month below the income CMHC calls for to finance a $20,000 loan.

Kilgour Tops Gun Event

Mike Kilgour, Victoria Gun Club's president, topped all shooters Sunday in the annual Winchester Claybird tournament.

Kilgour shot 97 in the trap division and 98 in the skeet for a 195 total out of a possible 200. John Bell, with 97-96, was second, Bill Potts, 93-99, took third place, Lou Bletz, 97-94, was fourth and Al Danehuk, 92-91, took the scratch berth on the five-member team which will participate in the cross-Canada shoot-off Oct. 4. The top five received a new shotgun each.

Polo Devils Edge Angels

Tony and Jill Yonge scored two goals each as Red Devils edged Blue Angels, 5-4, in a Victoria Polo Club match Sunday at the club grounds. Joan Barrie scored the other goal for the winners. Basil Parker, with two goals and one each by Andy Barrie and Eoin Rulhove accounted for Blue Angels' scoring.

School Referendum Block To Workable Formula

By BILL STAYDAL

Island school trustees heard a condemnation Saturday of referendum on school operating funds, in a report on the effect of the new education finance formula.

It was a preview of the debate expected when the B.C. School Trustees' Association holds its annual convention in Vancouver next month.

Bruce Saunders, chairman of the Campbell River school board, delivered the committee report at a meeting of the Island branch of the BCSTA. Forty trustees attended the meeting at the Victoria school board office.

PROVINCIAL STANDARD

Mr. Saunders said that the finance formula introduced in 1968 has "the potential of more satisfactorily equalizing the tax load throughout the province and also the potential of severely restricting those districts which have exceeded the provincial standard in the provision of educational opportunity."

A major effect which has been felt already is "a new degree of uncertainty" in school district operations, Mr. Saunders said.

The study pointed out that teachers must be hired at a time when the basic education program won't be known for seven or eight months.

STRONG CRITICISM

Mr. Saunders turned strong criticism on the provision for a referendum on operating funds above 110 per cent of the government-fixed basic education program.

Uncertainty in the possibility of a defeated referendum severely hampers school board planning, he said.

"The government is capitalizing on the very real need to limit its own share of education costs by simultaneously limiting the individual district's voluntary share," he said.

NOTHING RISKED

"In doing so, the government hopes to reduce the pressures created by the less imaginative districts which, having risked nothing, gaze enviously at the educational climate of the so-called 'lighthouse districts' and righteously cry: 'Me too!'"

He said that with the exception of the operating referendum, "there does not appear to be anything in the finance formula which cannot be made to work."

"Indeed, again with the one exception, there appears to be much to recommend the formula over the one it replaced."

EXECUTIVE BACKED

Mr. Saunders' committee declared itself in support of the BCSTA executive, which last May announced that it opposed the principle of referendums on school operating budgets.

The executive will seek general endorsement of its stand at the October BCSTA convention, during which education finance will be a major topic.

The executive, in the preamble to its resolution, says that fiscal control has been taken out of the hands of the people's local education representatives.

"The inconsistency which presently exists is repugnant to the principles of participatory democracy and has grave implications for the health of our educational system, which is built on the concept that local control can best assess local needs and aspirations, and thereby act to satisfy these needs," says the resolution.

Nanaimo school board, which has to trim its budget last spring because of the new legislation, wants a commission under the Public Inquiries Act to investigate the education finance formula.

Cowichan school board will sponsor a resolution seeking elimination of referendums on school construction costs, unless five per cent of owner-selectors petition for a referendum.

AFFIRMATIVE VOTE

The same school board will also propose a resolution to the government asking that referendums pass with a 50 per cent affirmative vote. The requirement currently is 60 per cent.

Elderly pensioners would get a break on property taxes under two resolutions coming up in October.
One asks the minister "to investigate methods by which homeowners over the age of 65 may pay reduced property taxes."

The other, sponsored by Cowichan school board, seeks a $10 increase in the homeowner grant to all old-age pensioners. It also would have every property owner except old age pensioners pay the first $50 on his school tax, or the entire tax, whichever is the lesser.

West Vancouver is sponsoring a resolution asking the provincial government to take over the full cost of building and operating regional colleges, the same as universities.

Greater Victoria school board will propose that public education costs be removed entirely from the property tax.

SPECIAL TAX

Two years ago the board unsuccessfully proposed the same thing, but this time has added: "Education should be financed through a provincially levied special tax based on income of private individuals and profits of business and industrial firms."

School grants should then come from the general revenue of the province," the Greater Victoria board argues.

"Blow me, I'll have a break," said the young man to himself. And with that decided, John Jeffers, 25, disengaged himself from his respectable employment as an insurance claims adjuster with the respectable firm of Howell and Brooks in the British provincial town of Norwich, and departed on foot for the Orient.

That was a year ago Saturday. A year's hitch-hiking and the odd boat ride brought Mr. Jeffers half way around the world into Crofton where the green hills of British Columbia greeted his eyes at sunrise.

Floyd Nelson was elected president of the Victoria Sunday Commercial Curling League at the general meeting in the Victoria Curling Club.

Victoria XVs Top Visitors

Victoria Rugby Union teams scored three victories over Seattle opponents in exhibition matches over the weekend.

Don Burgess led Oak Bay Wanderers to a 34-6 win Sunday at Windsor Park scoring 16 points on two penalty goals and five converts. Don Panton scored a pair of tries while Daryl Noullet Ian Baskerville Bruce Clark and Bob Iverson scored one try each.

Castaways first division team won 9-3, while their second division squad downed the American visitors 18-0, Saturday.
Castaways defeated Nanaimo Hornets 18-11, in another exhibition game.

Sewered Land Soon

"As soon as our sewage project gets under way we shall have more sewerage land in the municipality, and we shall build on that if necessary," said Ald. Gunning.

Saanich is also well along with planning for accommodation for 80 pensioners to be built near the Silver Threads centre at Hampton Park.

The houses to be built at the Bishop Cridge Centre are intended primarily for single-parent families who will be able to work together on baby-sitting arrangements and other projects to enable some of the adults to work.

"We just want to be sure the houses are of a standard to fit in with the other houses in the Cook-Hillside area, so that the rest of the community will want to accept the development and use its facilities," said board chairman Charles Ellington.

Silver Threads executive director Catherine Horne said several groups are interested in working on provision of housing.

"The biggest stumbling block is land," she said.

"Many problems could be solved if the municipalities who have land would either sell it for a nominal sum for non-profit housing, or if they would give a low-cost lease on the land."

"I think if land could be acquired it would speed things along a great deal."

Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids...and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved... actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most important—this improvement was maintained in cases where clinical observations were continued over a period of many months. Furthermore, these tests and observations were made on patients with a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. All this was accomplished with a healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a stated cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

B.C. Order:

ARBITRATION FOR POLICE

By DON COLLINS

Saanich and Oak Bay police lost the right Monday to call a strike in their present wage dispute.

They will be forced, as had been expected, to abide by a binding decision of the B.C. Mediation Commission. (See also Page 17.)

For the first time since it began official operation last December, the commission will exercise its controversial power of compulsory arbitration.

CABINET MEETING

The decision to hand the case to the commission on this basis was made at a cabinet meeting on the advice of Labor Minister Leslie Peterson, after he had met in his office for an hour and 45 minutes with representatives of the two police bodies.

Had this move not been made, the police had planned to serve 72-hour strike notice on both municipalities at 9 a.m. today.

The mediation commission has heard other cases, but only when the parties voluntarily requested it.

FORCED HAND

This time, the police forced the government's hand by voting last Friday in favor of a strike, and setting a deadline.

Mr. Peterson, who is also attorney-general, had indicated earlier the police constituted an essential service that could not be allowed to break down.

Police had forecast Monday's outcome well in advance and had described it as the only avenue open to them. When they held their strike vote Friday, they agreed not to serve notice until they conferred Monday with Mr. Peterson.

SECTION 18

The power the commission will use in dealing with the case comes through invoking Section 18 of the Mediation Act, better known as Bill 33.

After meeting police representatives, Mr. Peterson said he felt he had no alternative but to recommend use of compulsory arbitration by the commission. He said police had brought up the question of establishing a police act, but that this had not been discussed in depth.

'MINISTER RELUCTANT'

Teamster west coast leader Ed Lawson, representing the police, said Mr. Peterson did not seem to favor the idea of a police act. "The minister was reluctant to take the policemen from under the sphere of the mediation commission."

He said Bill 33 gave police the right to call a strike "without the right to exercise it."

Police in Victoria, Oak Bay and Saanich had sought through their various police commissions to win wage parity with police in six communities on the Lower Mainland.

SALARY DIFFERENCE

Until a recent 17.5 per cent increase, a first-class constable on the mainland had been earning $644 a month, compared to $620 for his counterpart in Greater Victoria.

Police here say it would take a 21.5 per cent hike to bring about parity. Victoria police went before the mediation commission on a voluntary basis and were awarded a 14.56 per cent increase, dubbed "punitive and unfair" by Mr. Lawson, who had represented them.

OFFER REDUCED

Oak Bay police were offered 17 per cent by their police commission, but the offer was reduced to match the Victoria award. Saanich police say their offer fell short of the 14.56 per cent set for Victoria.

Mr. Lawson said Mr. Peterson was told Monday an application would be made to have the mediation commission reconsider the Victoria police award. He said Mr. Peterson appeared willing to hear such an application.

Anti-Gambling Crusader Bets Wrong Longshot

RENTON, Wash. (UPI) — Crusading attorney Alva Long went to Longacres racetrack Sunday bent on losing $300 and suing the state for running an illegal gambling establishment. Instead his longshot came home in front and Long won $1,845.

The attorney from Auburn, Wash., was going to lose $300 in crisp $100 bills, then sue the state under an 1881 statute. The $300 sum was stipulated in the old law as a requirement to bring the matter to the state supreme court.

In the first race, Long plunked down his money for three $100 tickets to win on Sun O'Morn, who had managed to lose all three of his starts, including a 16-length whipping in his last race. But the horse, fourth choice of the bettors, grabbed the lead in the stretch and came home a winner, paying $12.30 for every $2.

The law, passed by a territorial legislature before Washington became a state, permits anyone who loses money gambling to sue the person he lost money to for the amount lost.

Long said he will try again, and emphasized he does not want to end all gambling in the state. Instead, he hopes to do away with double standards that ban gambling on pinball machines or in cardrooms while allowing pari-mutuel gambling at the track.

Specific Figures Today

Major U.S. Withdrawals Predicted from Vietnam

● Flyers' wives appeal to Hanoi, Page 3.

SAIGON (AP) — Another 40,500 United States troops will be withdrawn from South Vietnam by the end of November and from 150,000 to 200,000 will be out of the country by the end of 1970, Vice-President Nguyen Cao Ky said Monday night.

The Viet Cong radio promptly repeated demands that all U.S. troops get out of the country. It declared complete withdrawal "is the only way to restore the honor of the United States and to avoid the meaningless death of tens of thousands of young Americans."

SPECIFIC FIGURES

Ky made his statement while visiting a Saigon art exhibit after an emergency meeting of the South Vietnamese National Security Council.

In Washington, White House press secretary Ronald Ziegler told reporters President Nixon has decided definitely on another withdrawal of U.S. troops from Vietnam. He said the White House would announce specific figures this morning.

"Nixon's withdrawing more troops... pass it on!"

At present, there are about 508,000 U.S. troops in Vietnam.

Ky had been quoted earlier as saying that 40,000 American troops would be withdrawn by November. Later, he was quoted as saying 40,500 would be withdrawn by the end of November.

The Viet Cong broadcast called Nixon's initial withdrawal of 25,000 men, completed last month, "a trick." It declared that those pulled out had completed their year-long tour of war duty.

Shortly before Ky issued his statement, he met with President Nguyen Van Thieu and other top Vietnamese officials to discuss a second U.S. troop withdrawal. The meeting followed the return to Saigon of Gen. Creighton Abrams, U.S. commander in Vietnam, from a Washington conference with Nixon.

Ky's statement came at a time when the Nixon administration was being pressed to take new peace initiatives following the death of North Vietnamese President Ho Chi Minh.

REGULAR UNIT

The U.S. command reported Monday that for the first time in the war a regular North Vietnamese army unit—the 18B Regiment—had attacked in the Mekong Delta, south of Saigon.

The regiment, numbering up to 2,000 men, was reported to have moved into the delta last month after the withdrawal of two brigades of the 9th Division to the U.S.

Seven hours of fighting left 83 Communist troops dead. Four government trainees were killed and 19 wounded.

There were no reports of major action elsewhere.

Russia Breaks Wheat Pact

Canada May Lose Millions

Colonial Los Angeles Times Service

MOSCOW — The Soviet Union has defaulted on a major three-year wheat agreement with Canada resulting in possible Canadian losses of several hundred million dollars.

It is understood on the best authority that the Soviet failure to fulfill contractual obligations could cost Canada as much as $200,000,000 to $300,000,000 in wheat sales.

These loss estimates represent outstanding Soviet pledges to purchase Canadian wheat under an agreement signed in June, 1966.

Under that accord the Russians agreed to buy 9,000,000 metric tons during a three-year period. The total estimated cost to the Soviet Union was between $500,000,000 and $700,000,000.

The contract's termination date fell July 31, 1969.

Canada has sold and delivered only about 5,200,000 tons thus far. The unsettled Soviet deficit remains at approximately 3,800,000 tons, or 42 per cent of what the Russians originally promised to buy.

Moreover, Canadian hopes of rectifying what is a clear Soviet default are anything but encouraging.

In spite of the joint agreement, Canadian wheat sales to the Soviet Union have tapered off dramatically since 1967.

The Russians bought 57,200,000 bushels of wheat that year. In 1968 the figure dropped to 40,000,000 bushels. During December of last year Canada was able to conclude only a couple of small future sales covering limited wheat shipments to Cuba.

It was in that month that Canadian and Soviet officials held their last direct meeting. A long-distance but inconclusive exchange took place early this summer.

As the question now stands, the two sides have agreed only to meet later in the year. The best Eastern judgment here is that at that time the Soviet Union may consent to nothing more than nominal wheat purchases and a proviso to continue periodic talks.

For the public record neither nation is conceding default, a potential source of serious controversy between Moscow and Ottawa. Instead the troubles are couched in fancy diplomatic language about continuing talks and the recognition by both sides of existing financial obligations.

The point about the initial contract, however, is that it does not contain a stretch-out clause.

Informed sources offered the following two-fold explanation of the Soviet failure to live up to the agreement, a

Frank Radar Critic Punished?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. government was accused Monday of punishing an air traffic controller who warned radar coverage was weak in an area where a jetliner collided with a small plane last week, killing 83 persons.

The National Association of Government Employees, which claims to represent about 8,500 of the 14,000 U.S. controllers, said the Federal Aviation Administration relieved James Knecht of his duties controlling traffic at Weir-Cook Municipal Airport in Indianapolis.

The association also said Knecht was held "incommunicado" over the weekend by FAA officials. It said he was subjected to "intense grilling" while being denied the right to counsel.

Kenneth Lyons, association president, said "There is no question but that the FAA is punishing this man for squealing on the system."

An FAA spokesman confirmed Knecht was believed of his duties and assigned to a new job where radar is not involved. He said the FAA Supervisor at Indianapolis felt that, if Knecht did not have "confidence" in the radar, he should not be assigned to use it.

Knecht has said he warned the FAA July 28 small planes do not appear in the area of radar coverage where an Allegheny Airlines jetliner collided with a private plane Sept. 9.

Lyons said Knecht "has been warning the agency for more than two years that radar coverage at Weir-Cook was inadequate. Now that his and the other controllers' worse fears have been realized, the FAA bureaucracy is doing its damndest to squelch any revelation of its negligence."

He said the association had sent a telegram to FAA administrator John Shaffer demanding Knecht be fully restored to his old job within 48 hours or he would seek court action and a Congressional investigation.

New Cosmos Launch In Space Bomb Path

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union Monday launched an unmanned satellite into a path used for testing its unique "space bomb."

Tass said Cosmos 298 was sent up on an orbit with a high point of 131 miles and a low point of 87 miles at an angle to the equator of 50 degrees. Western military space experts said this is the path used for testing the Soviet fractional orbital bombardment system in 1967 and 1968.

Standard Cosmos space research vehicles follow one of several well-known orbits and prototype manned space craft are tested in other flight paths. The orbit of Cosmos 298 has been used only for testing the "space bomb."

The "fractional orbit" means the weapon is designed to complete less than a full orbit around earth. It is then slowed by retro-rockets and drops its warhead or warheads on a target.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon set his sights Monday on a United States landing on Mars in the 1980s.

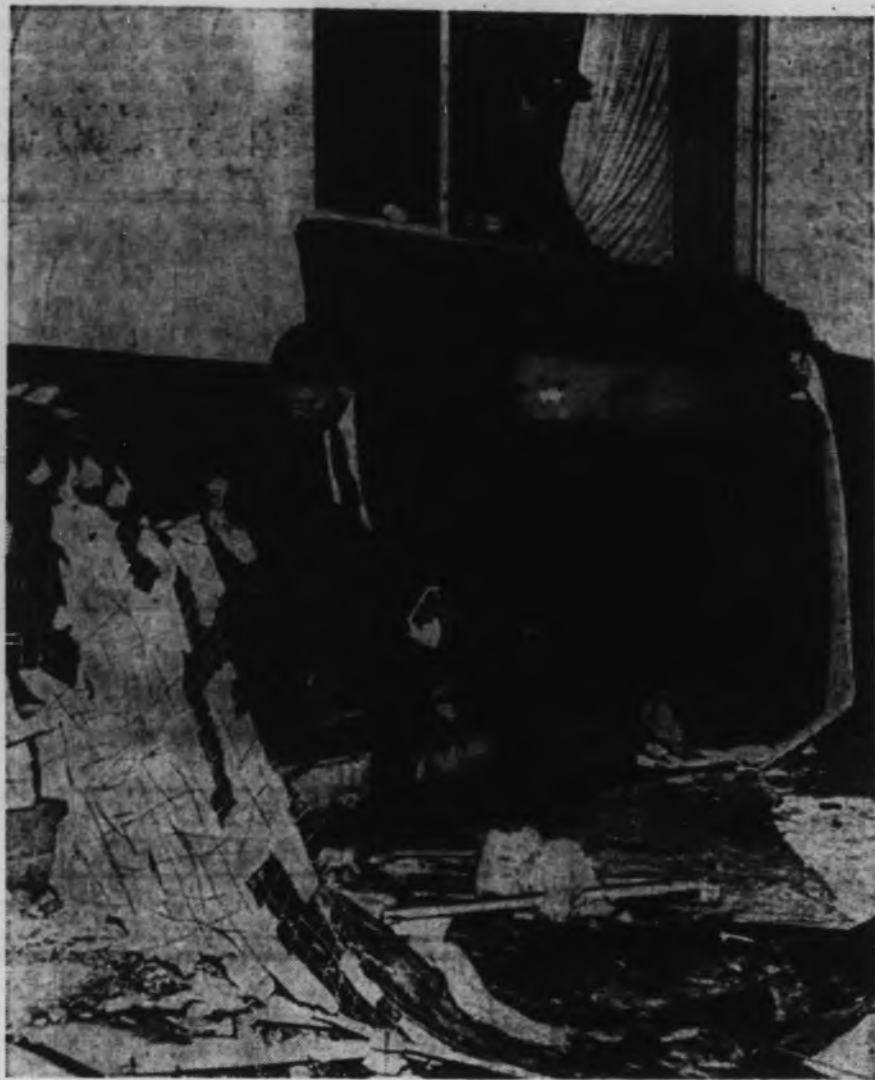

Nixon accepted a report from a special task force on space calling for a landing on Mars but rejecting any crash program to do so that would ignore budgetary considerations.

The report also rejected any phasing out of manned space flights.

The report was submitted by Vice-President Spiro Agnew and other members of the task force. Nixon had assigned the group the task of making proposals for the administration's space program.

White House press secretary Ronald Ziegler said its recommendations on it call for "a balanced program of both manned and unmanned activity with a man landing on Mars as an integral part."

Family Unhurt, Goldfish Swims On

Blast Buckles Home

By NANCY BROWN

Neva Robinson, 3231 Linwood turned up the thermostat in her home at about 7:30 p.m. Monday, and the house exploded.

Basement walls were blown out, the living room floor was raised a foot and chimney bricks flew across the living room when the furnace ignited gas fumes from a leaking gas main in the street outside the $30,000 house.

All four persons in the house escaped injury. In the wreckage, the family goldfish continued to swim lazily in its aquarium.

"It was a miracle that no one was hurt," said contractor Lloyd Robinson, who designed and built his three-year-old home. "The basement door was blown right into the living room — the doorknob landed just behind the chestfield."

"I had no idea what had happened. One minute everything was fine, and the next there was this bang and the floor heaved up under my feet."

The house was full of smoke, and there was glass all around.

"I went out the bedroom window because the door was jammed, and then went in again through another door to see if there was anyone else in the house," said Mr. Robinson.

Mrs. Robinson escaped through the hall door, while boarder Ed Morgan, 18, rushed through and took the Robinson's daughter Sharon, 3, out of the house with him. Two Saanich fire trucks and 10 men fought a basement fire that followed the blast, but Fire Chief Joe Sutherland said it was extinguished without trouble. All basement walls and furniture were seared and blackened, and the blast knocked plaster off the basement wall of a neighbor's home.

It took a B.C. Hydro crew wearing gas masks until about 11:15 p.m. to seal the hole in the main. The hole, about as thick as a pencil, allowed the gas to seep into the basement through storm drain tile.

"We smelled gas about 5:30 p.m.," said Mr. Robinson. "And I went downstairs and changed the furnace filter and took the Coleman stove out of the basement. We didn't smell anything after that."

Mr. Robinson said repairs might be impossible, as all the foundations were either blown out or bowed. The family moved in with friends, but Mr. Robinson said he expected to move back into an older house at the rear of the property. The family lived in it while building their new home.

Can Life Survive Past 2025?

Chant Proposes University by TV

By CLEMENT CHAPPEL

The author of the 1960 royal commission on education has proposed that undergraduate university courses be given completely by television to offset climbing education costs that, by the 1990s, will equal the gross national product.

S. N. F. Chant, now chairman of the committee that cuts the B.C. universities grant pie, told about 100 University of Victoria extension lecture-goers that "the writing is on the wall": the endless education cost spiral must be met with sweeping changes at all levels or learning will price itself out of existence.

His proposal for TV learning would have to come despite nostalgia-minded educators who see the past in terms "rosier than the truth."

Dean Chant also criticized university teachers who are only interested in "their stock and trade" — worried that their "dignity be affronted." This must be offset by "sweeping changes in curricula." Much of the academic jargon must be abolished: "so much of it is just a cover-up for ignorance anyway."

Universities, in any case, are being threatened by other means of higher learning, notably, courses offered by business to provide personnel advancement. But in the fields of liberal arts, theoretical sciences and human purposes and values, the universities cannot be assailed, Dean Chant said.

Universities from now on "will have to exist in the midst of disquiet." Faced with the problems of overpopulation, genetic impairment from nuclear fallout, biological warfare and atmospheric oxygen depletion, it is doubtful that life can survive past the year 2025, said Dean

Chant, quoting what he said were authorities.

"Even religion has become less persuasive... surely the young must rise up and protest about what is being done to their world. Those who think the world will return to some level of stability are deluding themselves."

Dairy Owner Charged

When of Vagrancy Problem for Court

Byron McNutt was arrested at 4 a.m. Monday on a vagrancy charge and locked up in a Victoria police cell.

A vagrancy charge consists of three separate parts, all of which must coincide before a person can be considered a vagrant.

If a person does not have any apparent means of support, he comes partly under the charge.

But Mr. McNutt owns a sizable dairy farm at 4143 Wilkinson Road.

If a person cannot justify his presence at the time of questioning, he may again be a prospective vagrant.

Mr. McNutt, however, told the policeman that he was going to Saanich.

And finally, if a person has no fixed address, he satisfies part of the charge.

Mr. McNutt, on the other hand, has lived at 4150 Grange for the past 50 years.

"The house is worth a pretty penny, too," Mr. McNutt told Judge William Oatler in Victoria Provincial Court.

"So, I don't know if I'm a vagrant," he added thoughtfully, stroking his long beard. "There seem to be some interesting aspects to this case," Judge Oatler said.

"Very interesting," Mr. McNutt agreed. He pleaded not guilty to the charge, was remanded for trial until this afternoon and was released on his own recognizance.

Boy, Fish Stick Together

When Stephen Green, 8, of 336 Beckley, fell off the railway dock at Ogden Point Sunday afternoon, he thought he was a goner.

He'd taken swimming lessons, but when the water chamed over his head, he panicked.

Jim Fleet, 15, 252 Superior, was skimming in the area. He was out resting on a post when he saw Stephen tumble off the dock still holding the fish Jim had given him a few moments earlier.

Jim jumped in after the younger boy.

"When I pulled him out, he was still hanging on to that fish," Jim said.

Stephen was shaken when Jim got him safely landed, but he remembered to take the fish home to mother. Mrs. Janet Green.

Mrs. Green said, "I think he was more worried about that fish than he was about himself."

But, Stephen said, "the fish got thrown out."

B.C. Wants College Reins

By BILL STAVDAL

Greater Victoria school board has been given to understand by Education Minister Donald Brotherton that a proposed community college here would be favored if it were controlled by the school board.

This was the report brought back to the board Monday after a meeting last week of three trustees with the education minister.

The trustees want to develop the Institute of Adult Studies into a district college run by the board alone. Regional colleges are governed by a council to which the government appoints a majority of members.

Planning for the proposed college was suspended last spring after it was learned that Mr. Brotherton had ordered a study of possible co-ordination of regional colleges and provincial vocational schools.

Last week board chairman Dr. Carron Jameson visited the education minister, accompanied by trustees George Curran and Allan McKinnon.

Dr. Jameson reported at Monday's school board meeting that the minister was "not immediately hopeful" that the college project could go ahead.

He said the trustees offered on behalf of the school board to take over administration of the vocational school now under construction in Royal Oak.

Trustee McKinnon said the interview was "the most discouraging morning I've had in a long time."

"We want a district college, and we were given to understand that they want a regional college," he said.

"If we give in, I think we could have a regional college a lot sooner than we'll get a district college."

ENROLMENT SOARING
He suggested that the board should be willing to abandon its position if necessary for the sake of would-be students seeking education in Greater Victoria.

Enrolment at the Institute of Adult Studies is soaring, said adult education director Jack Dalgleish. He reported that enrolment in the day division is now 618, compared with 548 last year, and that registration is expected to total 700.

Evening division registration in Grade 12 is now 755, compared with 619 last winter. The board was told that the Institute's first offering of three university-level courses has been heavily enrolled.

FIRST YEAR

Students last year asked for first-year university courses in psychology, economics and geography. Some senior matriculation courses authorized by the department of education are not acceptable in university as a basis for further study.

Enrolment in the three new courses totals 280, Mr. Dalgleish reported.

The school board ordered a letter sent to the department requesting "early changes" in senior matriculation courses.

The board also will seek the views of Saanich and Sooke school boards on a regional vs. district college.

Police Wary of Commission

Mediation May Be the Last

There was a hint Monday night that disgruntled police might refuse in future to deal with the controversial B.C. Mediation Commission.

"We are going before the commission this time, but if we only get a rubber stamp of the unfair deal Victoria got, it may well be the last time," Oak Bay police Sgt. Jack Groves said.

Sgt. Groves heads the Oak Bay Police Association. It and the Saanich Police Union, headed by Constable Norman Christman, will have their wage issue settled on a compulsory arbitration basis by the commission.

Sgt. Groves said he and other police representatives were not happy with the results of a meeting Monday with Labor Minister Leslie Peterson.

Mr. Peterson felt the case would have to go before the commission and did not favor a police recommendation that he personally serve as a mediator, Sgt. Groves said.

He said police representatives had suggested he meet with their groups and the police commissions in the two municipalities.

"But now we are going before the commission, we are going to fight this thing," Sgt. Groves said. "Anyone familiar with the situation will know there were certain weaknesses in the commission's decision, which granted Victoria only a 14.56-per-cent increase."

One such weakness, he said, was the fact the wage gap between Lower Mainland and Greater Victoria police would now be widened.

"There was no evidence at all to justify the widening of this gap," he said.

Police would also try to strengthen their bargaining stand by having all 11 forces in the B.C. Federation of Peace Officers negotiating new contracts at the same time, Sgt. Groves said.

This year half a dozen had contracts expire at the same time.

"The others will now go for a one-year contract so the next time around all 11 of us will be in this together," he said.
